$1,250,000 Baldwin's 'Reward'

London, June 21 (INS)—Someone was so pleased with the way Stanley Baldwin handled the abdication crisis of King Edward that he gave the ex-premier $1,250,000, it was learned today.

Baldwin, now an earl, announced he is turning the money over to the empire as a trust fund.

FRENCH SHIP TO LEAVE

After a 12-day visit here, the French sloop Ville D'Ys will leave the Boston Navy Yard tomorrow for Sydney, Nova Scotia.

$40,000 BAIL IN GIRL ATTACK

Heavy bail of $20,000 each was placed today in South Boston court on two South Boston men, one a bridegroom of only two months, after they pleaded not guilty to automobile charges and an attack on a Canadian girl.

In default of the bail, the two men, James Kelley, 28, of West Seventh street, and Edmund Fleming 28, of Silver street, were sent to Charles street jail to await a hearing Wednesday.

Both were charged with operating a car without a license, operating after their licenses had been suspended and with attacking Miss Elva Blaquiere of Minto, N. B., after luring her from the home of her sister, Mrs. Frank Perault of Bowen street, South Boston.

The alleged attack occurred Friday night in the woods near Glen Echo, Stoughton. The girl charged she was stripped of her clothing.

Both men were arrested Saturday when Mrs. Perault took a telephone call from one of them for her sister, made a date for the men to call at the South Boston address—and then notified the police.

LOUIS, CHAMP ALL SET FOR TITLE BOUT

Chicago, June 21—James J. Braddock, heavyweight champion of the world, and Joe Louis, the enigmatical challenger for the title, virtually were at the end of their training today for their title bout tomorrow night in Comiskey Park, home of the White Sox.

They put in their final licks to the tune of the cash register, which has merrily rung up an advance sale that assures a gate of somewhere in the immediate vicinity of $750,000.

Promoter Mike Jacobs and his corps of cashiers stated today that unless there is a two-day rush for the cheaper seats the gate probably will not reach the million-dollar mark they had hoped for.

Speculators were in possession of a fair supply of the top-price $27.50 pasteboards and they were finding a ready market today at $80 a pair. They found themselves in danger of being stuck with the $16, $11 and $6 "ducats," as the public showed a decided apathy toward tickets priced at those figures.

The park is scaled to accommodate a crowd of 80,000, but last minute indications were that appreciably fewer than that would click the turnstiles.

Last minute enthusiasm on the part of supporters of the champion battered the pre-fight odds down to 2 to 1 with the Brown Bomber still ranking as favorite. Experienced observers stated that ringside odds might well be well below that figure.

Summer Comes In, Cool and Showery

Because the earth has rolled around to the point where the sun is farthest north, and at the same time nearest to New England, this was the first day of summer and longest day of the year—by three minutes.

To the accompaniment of showers, Miss Summertime made her official bow at 4:12 p. m. The day was exactly 15 hours and 14 minutes long. The thermometer was in the low sixties, contrasted to the first day of summer in 1923, when it reached a high mark of 95 degrees.

POPE PLANS TO FIGHT CLOSING

Munich, Germany, June 21 (AP)—Hundreds of thousands of Catholic school children quit their parochial schools all over predominantly - Catholic Bavaria today in obedience to a Nazi government order which dissolved the schools and made them secular institutions.

In Munich and upper Bavaria alone, the decree converted 966 confessional schools into secular institutions. Only 100 secular schools had existed heretofore in this area.

(In Vatican City, prelates said Pope Pius would oppose the Nazi school move with all his power.)

ELECTION HELD

This is the way it happened:

Elections which parents were asked to choose between parochial and secular schools, were held in various provincial districts. The result, the authorities announced, showed from 95 to 99 per cent in favor of secular schools.

(But Catholics have contended the elections were unfairly and hastily conducted, and that parents in many cases did not have a

His reason: He said the Federal income tax collector should have noted that 50 per cent of his engagements were due to his sartorial excellence and should have allowed for his wardrobe's upkeep.

He also objected to the collector's refusal to allow other items and asked a board of tax appeals' review of a $20,061 tax assessed against him for 1934.

Everett Steel Workers Strike

First evidence of labor trouble among steel workers in Greater Boston broke out today when four men suddenly went on strike at the New England Structural Steel and Iron Works plant, Beecham street, Everett.

Twenty pickets appeared outside the plant this morning shortly before the four employes went on strike. What union affiliation the pickets had was not immediately determined.

Later this afternoon the request was made for a larger police detail, and about 20 more officers were sent to the plant. The company employs about 300 men.

U. S. BOARD HEARS CIO, STEEL HEADS

BULLETINS

Warren, O., June 21 (AP)—Picket lines began to mass in fast-thickening formation around the Republic Steel Corporation plant here today as threats of a general strike rumbled through this community of 40,000.

Cleveland, June 21 (INS)—Republic Steel Corporation, the nation's third largest steel producer and one of the four companies affected by the CIO strike, served notice today it would not submit the strike to arbitration by the federal mediation board meeting here.

By Associated Press

With the zero hour set by steel executives for 7 a. m., tomorrow, and with about 24,000 men in the strike-ravaged Youngstown area involved, federal mediators strove desperately here to effect a esttlement.

The back-to-work challenge, announced by Frank Purnell, president of Youngstown Sheet & Tube, and by Republic Steel, drew a swift counter-challenge.

"As soon as somebody goes in those plants," said John Mayo, Youngstown director of the Steel Workers Organizing Committee, "the SOS will go out and there will be trouble.

"There will be so many men (strikers) down there they won't go in. We can bring in outside men, you know."

WRIT CURBS PICKETS

Simultaneously, the threat of a general strike of 10,000 members of organized labor rumbled in Warren, 14 miles from Youngstown.

The threat developed immediately after Judge Lynn G. Griffith, in a courtroom crowded with strikers, granted Republic Steel an injunction restraining the activities of strike pickets.

"If a general strike is called, it will be done quickly and without advance notice," said John M'Keown, CIO organizer at Warren.

In Cleveland, John L. Lewis' CIO generalissimo, stalked silent from the federal mediation board conference after an hour and a half of discussion on the most question of signed labor contracts—the prime matter of dispute in the 7-state "battle of steel" which has made more than 100,000 men idle in the Great Lakes region.

ORDER MILLS REOPENED

The first blast in the "back-to-work" movement came from Frank Purnell president of Youngstown Sheet & Tube, who announced—in defiance of Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins' plea for maintenance of the status quo—that he would attempt to re-open the three strike-bound company plants in Youngstown at 7 a. m. tomorrow.

Lewis Plans U. S. Strike to Bring Steel to Terms

By W. W. CHAPLIN

Copyright, 1937, by Universal Service

Cleveland, Ohio, June 21—If John L. Lewis cannot win the seven-state strike against the giants of the independent steel industry in any other way, he plans to call a country-wide general strike of approximately 2,000,000 workers.

As Lewis and officials of the four independent companies employing 100,000 men which are involved in the steel strike converged on Cleveland for today's opening session of a federal peace parley, Lewis' determination was disclosed by a person close to the labor leader ever since he organized the Committee for Industrial Organization. This individual said:

"I know this is true because Lewis told me so himself."

HAVOC IN STRIKE

Among other things the following would result:

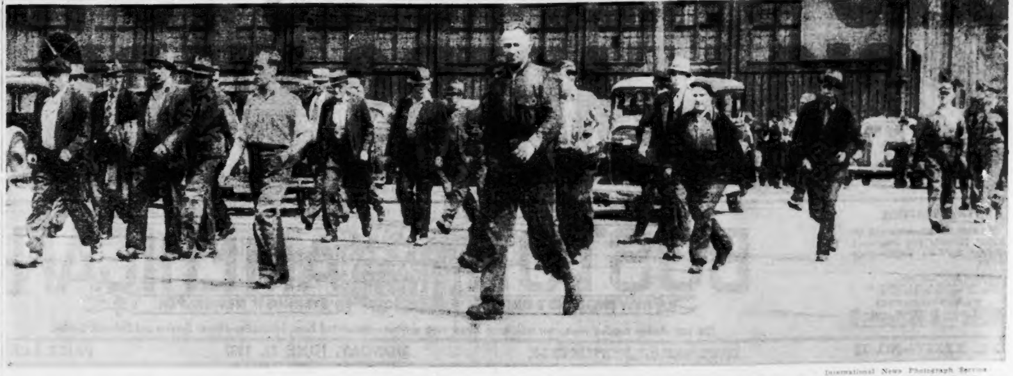
MARTIAL LAW FORCES MEN TO QUIT JOBS. AND LEAVE BIG JOHNSTOWN PLANT



International News Photograph Service

Forced by Governor Earle's martial law decree to abandon their jobs at the Cambria works of Bethlehem Steel in Johnstown, Pa., workers are shown leaving the plant as state troopers take charge. Eugene Grace, president of Bethlehem Steel, ordered the plant closed. Governor Earle declared he acted to avert bloodshed "and avoid a massacre."

tempt to reopen one of its mills tomorrow morning. Two were killed and 26 injured at the mill Saturday night in a raging battle between strikers and police.

The defiant orders to re-open came as strike leaders, headed by John L. Lewis, chairman of the Committee for Industrial Organization, entered a conference with federal mediators here in an effort to find a peaceful solution of the Great Lakes steel strike.

Sit-down strikers in Sheet & Tube mills have been threatened by union leaders if there were any back-to-work attempt.

SEE TRUCE NEAR

However, some observers believed the reopening orders may have been issued with advance knowledge of a truce to be reached at the Cleveland conference.

These believed that the conferees may agree to appeal the issue to the national labor relations board, and thence to the Supreme Court for final decision on the moot question whether the Wagner Act requires signed contracts.

The strike hinges on this point—the refusal of the steel companies to sign contracts.

"Why let women and children go hungry on an abstract question that can probably be settled in the court?" he asked.

At Warren, O., Judge Lynn Griffith in Trumbull county common pleas court granted a petition of Republic Steel for an injunction restraining the activities of strike pickets.

U. S. BOARD MEETS

Tight-lipped as to plans and hopes of the mediation conference, the steel union leaders and the Federal mediation board continued deliberations behind locked doors in a Cleveland hotel.

Shortly after noon, after the Lewis conference had ended, steel company executives hurried into the conference room.

The steel company executives had nothing to say to anyone. In a suite remote from the conference room, waited Lewis and his lieutenants. Not long ago, Girdler said, among other things, of Lewis:

"I hope to God I never meet him."

Headed by Charles P. Taft, the board has as other members Lloyd K. Garrison of the University of Wisconsin, and Edward F. McGrady, assistant secretary of labor.

CANNOT FORCE PEACE

"We are mediators, not arbitrators," said Taft.

"We have no power to compel settlement. We cannot make the four steel corporations sign contracts, as the CIO demands; nor can we compel the CIO to call off the strike that has put 100,000 men out of work. We can only try to find a meeting ground for peace."

Sheet & Tube employs 15,000 to 18,000 men in the Mahoning Valley.

Purnell's order said:

"All employes who want to work should enter the plants at 7 a. m."

He added that time and a half would be paid for all work over an eight-hour shift.

Republic Steel employs 6000 in the plant that has been ordered re-opened.

Its back to work order also was issued for 7 a. m.

PROTECTION PLEDGED

Purnell said the mayors of Youngstown, Campbell, Struthers and Hubbard, and Sheriff Ralph E. Elser "have stated to me they are willing and now able to protect company employes lawfully asserting their right to resume work."

Thomas declared Saturday night's fighting was "part of the CIO strategy to have Gov. Davey intervene in the strike."

"Gov. Earle in Pennsylvania fell for that hokum," said Thomas, "I'm hoping Gov. Davey won't be silly enough to fall for such bunk."

He referred to the union's call for troops after the Saturday night fighting.

"I am not going to use any force to break strikes, but I expect to have enough men to maintain law and order.

"I will deputize whatever men it takes to keep order."

Asked how his deputies would be armed, the sheriff queried:

"How are they (strikers) going to be armed!"

TO PROTECT WORKERS

The text of the statement by Republic Steel Corporation:

"Acceding to the direct request of thousands of employes who desire to work we take this means of notifying them that the Poland ave. gate at Stop 5 will be opened at 7 a. m., Tuesday, June 22, so that employes may return to work.

"All employes should report to their foremen for assignment to their position.

"City and county authorities have assured us ample protection, if needed. Operations will be on a 12-hour basis, temporarily, with time and a half over eight hours.

"There will be no discrimination on account of union membership. We cannot, however, rehire anyone who has been guilty of violence or guilty of provoking, condoning, or instigating acts of violence against the corporation, its employes, their himes or their families."

Sec. Perkins Asked If Steel Board Is Packed

Washington, June 21 (INS)—A resolution demanding from Secretary of Labor Perkins information, in effect, as to whether the steel labor mediation board is "packed" was introduced in the House today by Rep. Hoffman (R.), Michigan.

The independent steel manufacturers have refused to sign a written agreement with CIO unions and Hoffman cited statements of two of the mediators, Charles P. Taft and Floyd K. Garrison, indicating they favored written contracts, which is virtually the sole issue in the current strikes.

The third member of the board, Hoffman pointed out, is Assistant Secretary of Labor Edward F. McGrady.

The resolution asked Secretary Perkins to say whether the labor department has an agreement with John L. Lewis, CIO chief; whether it is the policy of the labor department to close plants when there is picketing and whether the department will make an effort to secure for workers the opportunity to work.

Court Writ Disarms Pickets

Order Curbs Steel; General Strike Looms

Warren, O., June 21 (AP)—The threat of a general strike, involving between 10,000 and 15,000 members of organized labor, rumbled ominously in strike-torn Warren today, as Judge Lynn B. Griffith granted the Republic Steel Corporation an injunction restraining the activities of strike pickets.

John McKeown, CIO organizer, announced:

"If a general strike is called, it will be done quickly and without advance notice."

Other labor leaders freely discussed the possibility of a general strike in retaliation for the court injunction order.

DISARMS PICKETS

Under the injunction issued by Judge Griffith pickets were restrained permanently from arming themselves with clubs or other weapons, obstructing streets or highways in the county, interfering with any persons in the county, intimidating by threats of violence any persons from entering the employ of the Republic Steel Corporation, interfering with movement of freight trains or trucks, or damaging property of the steel company.

ALSO CURBS COMPANY

Judge Griffith limited to 12 the number of pickets who may be stationed at one time at the main gate of the Niles plant, and eight at the main gate at Warren, with 62 as the limit for six entrances at Warren.

The court also enjoined the Steel company from throwing objects at the strikers at any time or place, from threatening violence against the strikers, and from making assaults against the strikers or their families.

The company was ordered not to move freight trains or trucks into or out of its plants until Wednesday at 6 a. m.

The court order regarding pickets says that it may be amended when necessity is made to appear.

Peace Parley Set In Wool Strike

A meeting of the International Longshoremen's Association and representatives of six wool warehouses was called today in an attempt to settle a three-day strike on Boston docks.

The meeting was called following a warning by union Vice-President Daniel J. Donovan, that "not a bale will be moved unless the union's wage demand is met in the morning conference."

Warehouse owners threatened to start shipments of wool by rail, should today's peace efforts fail.

State Acts to End Quincy Strike

In an effort to bring about immediate settlement of the strike which has shut Quincy off from gasoline and fuel oil supplies, the state conciliation and arbitration board today met with representatives of the Coal and Fuel Chauffeurs' and Helpers' Union and the eight oil and coal companies involved.

Approximately 50 gasoline stations in Quincy were unable yesterday to supply the demands of heavy traffic which moves regularly through that city to the South Shore.

GREEN SCORES CIO'S 'DESTRUCTIVE ACTS'

Washington, June 21 (AP)—President William Green of the American Federation of Labor, in a letter to Representative John Luecke, Escanaba, Mich., expressed concern today over the public's reaction to recent Michigan strikes.

Green's letter answered one from Luecke addressed to Green and John L. Lewis, chairman of the Committee for Industrial Organization. Luecke had urged the two leaders to unite their organizations and provide "tried" leadership for newly organized labor groups. Lewis has not replied.

HITS CIO AS DESTRUCTIVE

"Like you, I have been apprehensive over what has been taking place in the CIO organization movement," Green wrote Luecke.

"An evil influence has caused groups of newly organized workers connected with the CIO to follow a destructive policy. As a result, public opinion is turning against them."

Luecke said Green apparently was referring in part to the Saginaw Valley power strike and the "labor holiday" at Lansing when he wrote:

"The riots, the reprisals, the violence and the deaths which have occurred can be traceable to one destructive influence. The seizure of the city (Lansing) for a limited period, the cutting off of electric power and light in thousands of homes, all show the effect of the evil influence which has shaped and is shaping the policies of these new organizations recruited under the CIO leadership.

WARNS LAW WILL ACT

"Surely, thinking people can now begin to see just what it all means."

Luecke, a former chairman of the Michigan Senate's labor committee and a member of a craft union under the American Federation of Labor, had warned Lewis and Green unfavorable state legislation would follow uncontrolled labor strikes in Michigan and other states. He urged the A. F. of L. and the CIO to join forces.

"I have appealed for solidarity and unity," Green wrote Luecke. "As evidence of this fact, I have repeatedly urged that a committee from the CIO organizations meet a committee appointed by the executive council of the A. F. of L. which has been standing waiting for an opportunity to confer for more than 10 months.

"It is impossible for the executive council's committee to meet when the CIO group refuses to meet with it."

LEWIS PLANS GENERAL STRIKE OF 2,000,000

off over the greater part of the country and darkness would settle over a land in which the wheels of many industries were stilled.

Hundreds of thousands of miners would come up out of the pits with further serious handicap to the routine of industry and home life.

Transportation and the shipment of goods would be crippled in many places both by land and water.

Manufacture of automobiles would virtually cease.

It was learned the four companies represented at the parley called at the President's insistence in an effort to end the seven-state steel strike, know of Lewis' intention and have decided to continue the fight against him even in the face of such a possibility.

Both sides in the steel strike, which flared anew Saturday night with violence at Youngstown, Ohio, which cost one man his life and resulted in injuries to numerous others, were said to be coming here determined to stand by their guns, each demanding surrender of the other.

Charles P. Taft, chairman of the three-man mediation board appointed by Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins on White House orders, seemed in optimistic mood, although he was chary of making any predictions prior to opening of the peace parley today.

"BIG STEEL" SCORED

The present situation is complicated by the fact that United States Steel averted a strike by recognizing the SWOC and CIO and in some independent steel quarters it is felt that "big steel" thus sold the independent companies "down the river."

In reliable sources it is intimated that this feeling has increased the independents' determination to fight their battle through alone and so perhaps gain an individual position which will give them some marketing advantage over United States Steel.

The steel strike was called simply over the question of signed contracts between the companies and the union, which the companies refused to grant on the ground that written contracts were not demanded in the Wagner labor act.

Wages and hours are not involved—only the matter of signing contracts on matters of recognition and representation already verbally agreed to.

FIGHT TO FINISH

It was indicated today in circles close to the high command of the steel companies, however, that the written contract question is an expediency rather than a principal.

The companies, it was said, decided to band together to fight the CIO and the written contract matter was the simplest subject on which to join battle.

If the union should win that point it was indicated the companies still might not bow to the CIO but instead find some other point of difference to carry the fight along to a definite finish.

On the other hand, it was pointed out that in his campaign to organize American industry Lewis can ill afford at this time to accept defeat in so important a field as the steel business. For that reason it was said, he also is ready for a finish fight, with the call to a general strike as his ace in the hole.

Johnstown Quiet Under Rule of Troopers

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN

International News Service Staff Corespondent

Johnstown, Pa., June 21—With martial law in effect and the $50,000,000 plants of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation in this area closed by order of Governor George H. Earle to prevent violence, the strike situation today was completely under control of the Pennsylvania state police.

Except for a maintenance detail of about 900 men, the mills had been evacuated—under protest—by the company. It was estimated that about 2000 men passed out of the mills after Bethlehem Steel reluctantly complied with the governor's edict. Normally the company employs 15,000 men.

Although the city seethed with an undercurrent of excitement due to the dramatic developments of the past 48 hours, military rule was proceeding smoothly and there were no signs of disorder. The state police operated quietly and efficiently. They permitted no congregating of crowds and blockaded the plants.

Governor Earle today cancelled his proposed plane trip to the strike-torn city to gain a first hand picture of the situation. Inclement weather caused him to remain in Harrisburg.

Union leaders hailed his action in closing the mills as a victory. David Watkins, CIO leader, declared:

"Now, at least, we know peace is here and that the lives and welfare of the people and workers of Johnstown are secure."

Resentment of the governor's action was expressed by company officials, by Mayor Daniel J. Shields whose authority was superseded, by certain civic leaders and by some of the community's business men.

So like Jean Harlow that she used to act as the platinum-haired screen star's "stand-in," this beautiful Hollywood newcomer, 22-year-old Mary Dees, may double one last time for Jean, in order to complete "Saratoga," the M-G-M production which Miss Harlow had almost finished at the time of her sudden death. Under consideration by M-G-M executives is a plan to complete "Saratoga" with Miss Dees in the Jean Harlow role, all close-ups being avoided in an effort to create the illusion that Jean, herself, played the part to the end.

Mate Begs Prison to Free Wife

Asks to Serve Her Term in Theft

New York, June 21 (AP)—James H. Harper, former motion picture producer, asked a New York court today for permission to serve a three to six-year sentence imposed on his wife for embezzlement.

In disclosing receipt of the letter, attendants in the office of General Sessions Judge George L. Donnellan said it was the first letter of the kind ever received, but added:

"There is nothing the judge can do about it unless Harper is convicted of a crime."

LIFE OF PENURY

A probation officer's report submitted to Judge Donnellan before he sentenced the wife, Helen K. Harper, said she lived on tea and buns in a tenement so that her husband might have spending money.

She was convicted of taking nearly $50,000 from her employers, the Hold-Meredith Lumber Company. When he sentenced her on May 28, Judge Donnellan expressed sympathy for "this intelligent, cultured and refined woman" and her 10-year-old daughter.

TAKES SIN ON HIMSELF

Harper, in his letter, expressed hope that "the courts are more concerned in seeing that justice is done than they are in inflicting undue pain on a helpless woman, who has responded to the natural instincts of a good wife and mother."

Harper said he was "as much, if not more, to blame for my wife's sin against the law as she."

He said they both wanted "a nice home" for their daughter, and he and his wife "had faith in my ability to get ahead."

'Iron Lung' Youth Nears Home, Glad

Aboard the Overland Limited, June 21 (S)—Fred B. Snite, Jr., the 26-year-old Chicago youth who was stricken with infantile paralysis in China 15 months ago, spent most of the last 12 hours reading telegrams, letters and messages of welcome.

Encased in a 1100-pound life-giving Drinker Respirator, better known as the "iron lung," Snite is on the final leg of a 12,000-mile journey, enroute to Chicago where he will be treated for the malady.

Typical of this courageous boy is the statement of one of the staff members of the Peiping hospital in China from which Snite was removed for the long trip home to Chicago.

The doctor was asked how much was being done for the lad and the medico replied:

"He is doing more for us than it is possible for us to do for him. His indominitable spirit and his will to fight with a broad smile on his face is more of an inspiration than anything else in the world."

Hallowell Wife Asks Divorce

A Cape Cod society marriage of six years ago was revealed "on the rocks" today when Mrs. Martha Mead Hallowell, of Milton, filed suit for divorce in Dedham probate court against William Ladd Hallowell, also of Milton.

Mrs. Hallowell charged cruel and abusive treatment. The couple were married June 30, 1931, at Hyannisport, and have one child, William, Jr., five.

Mrs. Hallowell seeks custody of the child and allowance for his support. Her husband attended Milton Academy, Phillips Exeter and Harvard Business school. Both are well known in society circles.

Woman Indicted In Bank Shortage

Miss Barbara J. O'Connor, 32, of Third Cliff, Scituate, for nine years a teller at the Scituate branch of the Rockland Trust Company, was indicted today by the federal grand jury in 17 counts involving the alleged embezzlement of $8052 from the bank.

The indictments cover a period from December 2, 1935, to March 15 of this year, and except for four items the alleged embezzlements are in sums of $500.

Two other indictments were also returned by the grand jury, in its final report to Judge Hugh D. McLellan for the term which began in March.

In one of these, John Preoleau, alias Henry Palmer, of Boston, and Chester B. Smith of Cambridge and charged with selling heroin.

In the second indictment, Preoleau is named with Smith and with Henry Russell and John Thornton, both of Boston, on a charge of conspiracy in connection with the scale of narcotics.

JUDGING SYSTEM

The essays will be judged according to contents, style and grammar. And the unanimous decision of all three judges will be necessary to decide upon the two fortunate persons.

Judges of the contest are Mrs. Jay R. Benton, prominent Belmont clubwoman and wife of the former attorney-general; Prof. Louis J. A. Mercier of Harvard University faculty and Jean-Etienne Malgret, Boston French Consul.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Pictures are collaborating in this contest in recognition of the great reception New England moviegoers are giving the current M-G-M film epic, "A Day at the Races," now showing at Loew's State and Orpheum theaters.

Other details and rules on eligibility of the contest includes:

1—All contestants must be 18 years of age or over, residents of New England or students attending colleges or schools here.

2—If any of the two winners is under 21, his or her parents or guardian must give written consent before the winner can make the trip.

NEAR DEADLINE

3—All essays must be submitted NOT LATER THAN MIDNIGHT, JUNE 22, 1937.

4—Address all essays to the Paris Essay Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop square, Boston.

5—No essays will be returned and the decisions of the judges will be final.

The winners of the trip will plan to leave Paris not later than September 15 after 15 days in that city where they will be guests at the "talk of the world"—the Paris International Exposition.

Damon Runyon

Chicago, June 20—The picture of Mr. Gene Tunney and Mr. Jack Dempsey sitting side by side in an air liner en route from New York to Chicago to the big prize fight here, engaged in amiable discourse, tickles our fancy. It shows you what the years will do.

Time was when Mr. Gene Tunney and Mr. Jack Dempsey hated each other with a great and beautiful hate. There was no publicity hocus-pocus in their hate, either. They just naturally loathed each other, before, and for years after their two battles in the ring.

Mr. Dempsey represented everything that the esthetic Mr. Tunney despised in prize fighting. Mr. Tunney was the personification of all that Mr. Dempsey held in great contempt. Their close friends, and their respective followings were of entirely different worlds. Mr. Tunney spoke of his profession as boxing. Mr. Dempsey referred to himself as a fighter.

ENVIED MR. DEMPSEY

Mr. Tunney grew the first hate. As a youth he beheld Mr. Dempsey magnificently bestriding the field in which Mr. Tunney was but an humble toiler, poor, obscure, and with few admirers. He saw Mr. Dempsey rolling in riches, and the crowd roaring in his wake.

But Mr. Dempsey was a popular idol, a great fellow with the gals, a man about places, a great mixer, and in general a sort of king, and it is not surprising that the then lowly Mr. Tunney conceived a great distaste for Mr. Dempsey that gradually expanded into hate. Probably it was founded in the first place on envy. We usually come to hate a fellow we envy.

Mr. Dempsey had a great lusty body, and two iron fists. Mr. Tunney was pindling, as a youth, and his hands were bad, and here again was provocation for Mr. Tunney's hatred.

Seven years before he met Mr. Dempsey the first time in the prize ring, Mr. Tunney set about building up his body to make himself a heavyweight. He carried a little rubber ball in each side pocket of his coat and for years he squeezed these elastic globes up and down to strengthen his ahnds.

And through the years of his effort, and patience, and self-denial, his hate for Mr. Dempsey grew, though until they were matched the first time, Mr. Dempsey scarcely knew Mr. Tupney was living. Then when he saw his contender, a handsome, studious looking, well groomed young fellow, and heard of his reading, and his social contacts, Mr. Dempsey began developing his own personal hate.

He used to refer to Mr. Tunney in contemptuous terms. He said he would walk out there and knock Mr. Tunny from under his marcel. He rather inferred that in his opinion Mr. Tunney ought to be infesting drawing rooms and drinking tea rather than engaging in prize fighting. Mr. Dempsey was pretty sore at Mr. Tunney for no other reason than that he was Mr. Tunney, and in the final analysis that is about all Mr. Tunney really had against Mr. Dempsey.

EYE TO EYE

It is our guess that Mr. Dempsey to this day secretly believes that at his best he could have knocked out Mr. Tunney in a few rounds, and Mr. Tunney is probably just as thoroughly convinced that he always could have outpointed Mr. Dempsey as easily as he did in their two meetings.

They both got rich off their mutual hate, and the years have gone on and they are both married and are raising families, and now they can sit side by side in an air liner journeying to see a big prize fight at which they will be more spectators with no thought of animosity.

"What do you think of those two bums who are fighting Tuesday night?"

And we can imagine Mr. Dempsey replying:

"They are just two bums, Mr. Tunney. You or I could have licked them both the same night."

"That's right, Mr. Dempsey."

Airmen Exhausted After 63 Hours Of Danger

Vancouver, Wash., June 21—The three intrepid Soviet flyers, Chief Pilot Valeria Chkaloff, Co-Pilot Georgi Baldukoff and Navigator Alexander Beliakoff, today were to complete their Moscow to San Francisco journey either by train or chartered plane.

They indicated they would leave their red and grey low-winged monoplane under heavy guard here and plan later to have it shipped back to Russia.

They arose this morning at the home of Brigadier General and Mrs. George C. Marshall after having slept long and deeply. They were completely exhausted after their 63 hours and 17 minutes of hazardous flying.

After linking Russia and America by air in a non-stop flight over the North Pole from Moscow, they were forced by misty weather to land their plane here, only 580 miles short of their goal.

After traversing 5500 miles of dangerous Arctic wastes and more hospitable civilized stretches, the Russian pole-conquerors came down to a smooth landing at the Vancouver army airfield.

STIFF AND WEARY

Stiff and weary after their history-making battle with the elements, they climbed awkwardly out of the cockpit to be greeted by three Oregon University students, the only witnesses of the landing, in contrast to the thousands awaiting them at the Oakland airport.

One of the students, George Kozmetsky, hailed the flyers in their own language, asking them how they felt. The first words to tumble from the parched lips of one of the aviators were:

"All right."

The heoric aviators were disappointed over their failure to reach San Francisco and attain one of their ambitions, a new long-distance record for non-stop flying. But, they were, nevertheless, happy over their historic achievement in being the first ever to fly over the North Pole from one city to another.

BLAZED TRAIL

By their accomplishment they blazed the trail for a Russian-projected regular air service between Moscow and San Francisco.

Soviet Ambassador Aleander Troyanovsky flew here from San Rrancisco to welcome his flying countrymen. The ambassador, hailing the achievement as one of the greatest in air history, declared the flight officially ended here.

The plane's instruments were made ready for shipment to Washington where they will be checked and calibrated for the official records of the International Aeronautical Federation and the government.

PRAISE FROM STALIN

'Pole Vaulters' Tell Of Flight Hazards

Vancouver, Wash., June 21 (US)—Russia's three great aviators, clearly showing the strain of their history-making flight, told of their experiences through a Russian interpreter.

Taciturn and grizzled, the three, through Kozmetsky, Oregon University student, revealed the tense drama behind the radio silences that kept the millions of two continents breathless for further news. They declared:

"Never once in all manner of weather were we off our course or lost. At times, the arctic temperature sank as low as 27 degrees below zero. Ice coated the windows of our plane heavily, but we were never lost. No, not even in the blind flying. The excellent cooperation given by signal corps radio men was very wonderful, and it is appreciated by us.

"Once, we reached as far south as Eugene, Oregon. Low hanginig clouds and rain became steadily worse. We knew then we could not arrive at our planned destination."

Turning to Kozmetsky, Chkeloff said:

"Here is Portland. We flew back here, and then as far north as Tacoma. But we tried again. Yes, and turned south again. We thought we might get through this time."

Again he pointed to a dot on the map marked Vancouver, and said:

"We saw this field and landed."

Dressed in knee-length mukluks, heavy sweaters, wool trousers, and sheepskin-lined flying jackets, the three fliers looked at each other and grinned when General Marshall suggested they might like a breakfast, then clean pajamas and sleep.

COUNCILLORS CALLED IN SUIT

Two members of the governor's council, two former members and Public Works Commissioner William P. Callahan were summoned as witnesses today in the suit brought by Matthew P. Scullin, Boston and Quincy contractor, against the Cities Service Oil Company in Suffolk court.

Scullin seeks to collect damages for the use of land in Braintree which he purchased fro mthe state last December for $100,000.

Commissioner Callahan testified that the oil company used the land for 16 years without rental and that prior to the sale to Scullin he told attorneys of the oil company that they would have to move or purchase the land.

The commissioner also testified that the Bethlehem Steel Corporation ran a railroad over the land for the yearly rental of $1.

Present and former council members summoned were Councillors Daniel H. Coakley and Joseph B. Grossman and ex-Councillor William G. Hennessey and James J. Brennan.

$10,000 Gem Theft

New York, June 21 (AP)—Theft of uncut diamonds and jewelry valued at $10,000 from a safe in a Bronx jewelry store was reported to police today. The robbery was discovered early this morning by a passerby who said he noticed a hole in the floor of the store.

BLUM OFFERED POST IN NEW CABINET

Paris, June 21 (AP)—Camille Chautemps, Radical Socialist, ex-premier who is attempting to form a new People's Front cabinet, today offered a portfolio to Leon Blum, outgoing prime minister.

The Socialist Blum, whose government fell early today, withheld decision.

Truckloads of mobile guards rumbled through the streets as Chautemps sounded out leaders of various factions, particularly the Socialists. Their participation in the cabinet seemed to depend on agreement on a financial program.

Steel-helmeted guards deployed in front of the Senate to prevent any demonstration against the body that overthrew Socialist Premier Leon Blum and his people's Front government yesterday by refusing to grant decree powers to deal with the financial crisis.

Acting with significant speed, President Albert Lebrun summoned the Radical Socialist Chautemps to the Elysee palace before dawn, and instructed him to form a new government.

Building workers were preparing a separate strike this afternoon, and the Employers' Federation said construction work and offices would be closed Tuesday to retaliate for the workers' strike.

The franc strengthened immediately after Blum's resignation.

The fall of the Blum government, which in one year and 17 days of existence had weathered several other crises, was regarded as of international importance because of the role it played in the Spanish situation and its efforts with the United States and Great Britain through a tri-partite monetary accord to work for currency stabilization.

Guffey Coal Act Put in Operation

Washington, June 21 (AP)—President Roosevelt officially ordered into operation today the code of fair practices provided in the Guffey-Vinson act for the soft coal industry.

The act itself, replacing a law invalidated by the Supreme Court, specified the code should take effect today, but its operation depended upon the President's order.

W. S. TUFTS FUNERAL RITES WEDNESDAY

Funeral services for Wilfred S. Tufts, member of the board of directors of Jordan Marsh Company, will be held at the Second Congregational Church in Newton at 2 p. m., Wednesday.

WILFRED S. TUFTS

Mr. Tufts, who was 61 years of age and who had been associated with Jordan Marsh Company for 43 years, died yesterday at his home, 256 Highland street, West Newton.

He was born in St. John, N. B., the son of David M. and Margaret Steen Tufts. He came to Boston as a boy and went to work in Jordan's in 1894, working his way up to the post of senior merchandise manager.

In 1934 he retired from this position but remained a member of the board of directors.

Formerly a resident of Dorchester Mr. Tufts moved to his Newton home 15 years ago. His summer place was "The Moors" at Falmouth. He was a member of the Dalhousie Lodge of Masons, of the Algonquin Club, the Beacon Society and the Braeburn Country Club.

He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. John S. Lockwood of Philadelphia and Miss Marion Tufts of West Newton; by four sisters, Mrs. Truman Webb of St. John, Mrs. Malcolm Gillis of Rochester, N. Y.; Mrs. Frederick Sleeth of Hartford, Ct., and Miss Florence Tufts of Waltham; by three brothers, Maurice, Ellsworth and Clifford Tufts, all of St. John.

chance to vote their real sentiment.)

The Mayors and district leaders in Bavaria compiled the election figures and presented them to the state government.

Wagner outlined his sweeping move, affecting thousands of children, to 12,000 Nazi political leaders last night at Garmish.

The secularization, he declared, had been done Saturday at the joint request of all the mayors of upper Bavarian towns.

"I'm proud of this triumph in my province which is overwhelmingly Catholic and one of the oldest Nazi strongholds," the interior minister told the district party meeting.

He emphatically denied the dissolution of the Catholic schools violated the concordat between the Nazis and the Vatican, which, in part, guaranteed the continued operation of the Catholic institutions.

One reason for the quick decision, he added, was the prevalence of immorality cases in the schools.

Pope Expected to Fight Nazi Move

Vatican City, June 21 (AP)—Vatican sources said today they expected Pope Pius XI to oppose "with all his power" the closing of Catholic confessional schools in Germany.

They declared the German government was proceeding steadily with a plan of replacing clerical teachers with laymen in spite of its concordat with the Vatican.

Prelates awaited full details before commenting specifically.

But they disclosed the Pope might issue a "white book" against Germany. This "white book" already has been printed and is awaiting the Pope's order for release, it was stated.

Parsons 'Kidnaper' Writes Offer

Stony Brook, N. Y., June 21 (INS)—An anonymous letter posted Saturday in Yonkers informed authorities today that the writer is holding the missing Alice McDonell Parsons, and is willing to open negotiations for payment of $25,000 ransom by offering proof she is his captive.

The letter asked that the family insert a code notice of their willingness to do business, ann specified the code that shold be ued, in a New York morning newspaper.

The message was addressed to Chief of Police Charles Nenstiehl of Huntington, L. I.

He turned it over to Inspector Earle B. Connelly, in charge of G-men searching for the missing Stony Brok heiress.

SOVIET 'SPEAKER' SEIZED IN PURGE

NEW TREASON TRIALS LIKELY

Moscow, June 21 (AP)—Important new treason trials were indicated to be in store for the Soviet Union today, as another high party official joined the list of those apparently imprisoned in the sweeping purification of party ranks.

Josef Stanislavovitch Umschlicht, acting secretary of the union executive committee, whose position was equivalent to the speakership of the United States House of Representatives, disappeared June 16.

NO HINT OF CHARGES

Similar disappearances in recent months have preceded the placing of treason charges against numerous Russian leaders, but there was no hint of what accusation might be made against the secretary.

Umschlicht, a Pole by birth, was a member of the powerful central committee of the Communist party and stood close to the top of governmental structure as secretary of the committee of the presidency.

The hint of important new trials, following closely the trial and execution of eight high army leaders, was made by Prosecutor Andrey Vishinsky in a published article on the current situation in Russia.

NEW EVIDENCE BARED

Evidence incriminating additional enemies of the people who have yet to face the courts was uncovered in the recent military trial, Vishinsky asserted.

Discovery of a new band of saboteurs was reported from the Crimea, where the former commissar of social welfare, A. K. Ziumbilova, a woman, was arrested on charges of embezzlement.

N. S. Ghorasimenko, manager of the Gorky Railway's car department, was dismissed by the commissar of railways, and it was reported he would be tried for sabotage for failing to repair cars.

Hindenburg Metal Bid for $12,000

New York, June 21 (AP)—The skeleton of the great dirigible Hindenburg, which cost millions to construct, will salvage for only $4000 to $12,000, A. J. Smith, of United States Aviation Underwriters, Inc., said today.

Bids have been received from U. S. Smelting Refining & Mining Company, from Aluminum Company of America and from some smaller firms, but have not yet been tabulated, Smith said.

The amount realized will be determined by the weight of pure aluminum recovered in melting the alloy. Estimates of the tonnage vary from 25 to 30 tons and prices from 8 to 12 cents a pound, it is understood. More bids are being sought.

The Hindenburg burned at Lakehurst May 6 at the end of its first transatlantic crossing of the season. Thirty-six persons lost their lives.

Class of '12 Brings Gift To Harvard

1200 Alumni Meet In Reunion; Give Fund of $100,000

Alumni of the class of 1912—the class that Robert Benchley said is in "terrible shape"—returned to Harvard today for their 25th reunion, bringing $100,000 as the class gift to the university.

Prominent among the 1200 sons of Harvard, their wives and families who thronged historic Harvard Yard today, was Benchley, the humorist, who wrote of his graduating class.

"If I were a calamity howler, I could show that 72 per cent haven't got three million dollars to their name, 91 per cent can't juggle, and that we haven't had a single President of the United States."

CELEBRATE REUNION

In such jocular vein were the alumni prepared to celebrate their reunion, leading up to the class day ceremonies Wednesday, when the 25-year class will lead the costume parade of "old grads" to the stadium for the traditional confetti battle.

More than 350 members of the class had registered today at the Harvard Union, where they donned crimson and white neckties and armbands.

Wives and children were housed in the dormitories on the historic yard, where in colonial times no feminine foot dared tread.

Returning graduates from as far away as California and the British West Indies sat down to luncheon at noon at the Union building.

Among the distinguished alumni present today were Congressman George E. Akerson, secretary to former President Hoover; Clarence B. Randall, Cleveland, president of the strike-torn Inland Steel corporation.

W. Kingslaond Macy, former head of the Republican organization in New York; Walter Lincoln Bouve, Jr., Pittsburgh, editor; Kermit Roosevelt, president of Roosevelt Steamship Co. and vice-president of the International Mercantile Marine; Charles M. Storey, a Boston lawyer and counsel of Boston's Bar Association.

KENNEDY DUE LATER

Joseph P. Kennedy, former Securities Exchange Commission director and now head of the Maritime Commission, will arrive for Class Day ceremonies Wednesday.

Prominent local alumni delegates included Winifred Overholser, former state commissioner of mental diseases; Arthur J. Kelly, treasurer of R. H. White & Co.; Daniel Bloomfield, manager of the retail board of the Boston Chamber of Commerce; Edward J. Gallagher, treasurer of the Boston & Maine Railroad, and rancis C. Gray, former Boston School Committee chairman, treasurer of Radcliffe College and member of the board of the Massachusetts General Hospital.

Others included Thomas McCall, assistant United States attorney, New York; Mayor Alexander Murray, Fall River; Edwaed Joseph O'Brien, publisher of the "Best Short Stories" collection each year.

Congressman Richard B. Wigglesworth, Milton; Hugh L. Gaddis, Cleveland, class marshal; Major General Newell Bolton, head of the Ohio National Guard, and George R. Murphy, Detroit, brother of Michigan's strike-arbitrating governor.

Activities tonight will be under the direction of Oscar W. Hussermann, Milton, chairman of the reunion committee.

Activities were officially opened in the afternoon with a memorial service for deceased members at Memorial Chapel.

President James B. Conant and Mrs. Conant were to receive delegates at tea, following the service.

1500 Attend Fete In Charge of Miss McAfee

President Mildred H. McAfee presented diplomas to the first graduating class at Wellesley College under her administration today, as 308 seniors and 33 graduate students were awarded degrees.

More than 1500 students, alumni and invited guests attended traditional ceremonies of the 59th annual commencement, as Miss Josephine Roche, first woman of President Roosevelt's "Inner Cabinet," and Assistant Secretary of Treasury, delivered the oration.

"America needs pioneering today," Miss Roche declared.

"Pioneering needed today is in the field of human relations, to meet the challenge of millions of people still denied their chance to earn a living, to support and educate their families."

DEPLORES CHILD LABOR

The former candidate for governor of Colorado who established a democratic control and share system for workers in her mines before the New Deal had been thought of, deplored the use of child labor in industry.

"Hundreds of thousands of young boys and girls are taking the places of grown men and women in industry today," she stated.

"Older boys and girls, coming out of college, are unable to get work or to continue their education," she stated.

CHALLENGE OF DISEASE

Another challenge young Americans must face is the toll of disease, in this nation where 20 per cent of the people are affected by some form of chronic disease.

"The opportunity we must secure for these is the opportunity to live a creative life, not merely a secure one. There is no joy or happiness equal to creating something.

"We must remember that the Constitution guarantees not only the rights of 'life and liberty,' but also the right to the 'pursuit of happiness.'"

TO SPEED NEW POOL

Construction on a swimming pool on the campus will start as soon as plans can be approved, President McAfee announced.

The announcement came as a surprise to many alumnae, who have worked for several years toward accumulating funds to finance the new pool.

A total of $200,000 in gifts and bequests was reached today as trustees voted to begin the structure, after a last-minute meeting of alumnae last night wiped out a $4000 deficit in the sum needed.

Honor students who marched in the academic processional to receive diplomas today included one attractive young lady from Hopei, Tientsin, China. She is Elizabeth Louise Robinson, who received departmental honors and the Jacqueline award for excellence in English composition.

Senior honors in special fields went to Margaret E. Fleming, Pasadena, Cal., in English literature; Marjorie E. Frank, Brookline, in chemistry; Mary M. Holt, Buffalo, Wyo., economics; Margaret W. MacCallum, Montreal, in zoology; Cora C. Mason, Chillecothe, O., in history, and Eunice Usher, Cambridge, in physiology and chemistry.

Trustee scholarships were awarded to three in the graduating class, Barbara Lieberman, Brooklyn; Mary Orr Luqueer, Short Hills, N. J., and Cora C. Mason, Chillecothe, O.

During the past year, Wellesley has received $227,501 in gifts, President McAfee announced. The largest single amount is $75,000 from the Carnegie Corporation.

Largest gift from an individual was $20,000 from Mrs. Elizabeth Cheney Kaufman, Boston, for scholarships in music and art.

Harvard's senior class marches before the statute of John Harvard, caps doffed, on their way to Memorial Chapel for baccalaureate services, which marked the start of the university's 286th commencement exercises. Eight hundred seniors took part in the observance.

HUGHES WARNS OF PERIL TO DEMOCRACY

Speaking before the annual alumni meeting of Brown University, the Chief Justice, an alumnus of the class of 1881, warned that the problem of democracy is no longer "one of establishing democratic institutions, but of preserving them."

"Are our democratic impulses growing weaker?" he asked. "Under pressure of economic forces and insidious teachings of an alien philosophy, will our democracy be able to survive?"

"Safe as we may be in the present, what of the look ahead," he asked.

"The economic dislocations following the Great War have produced conditions, national and international, which vex the imagination and confuse the judgment.

"We still proclaim the old ideals of liberty, but we cannot voice them without anxiety in our hearts."

SECURITY IN SENTIMENT

Mere forms or institutional arrangements, however astutely contrived in the interest of liberty, will not serve to insure the future of democratic institutions, the chief justice said.

"The security of our democratic institutions is not in existing constitutional provisions or framework of government, but in the dominant sentiment which maintains them.

"That dominant sentiment," he declared, "is the result of many interacting forces, among which is the outstanding influence of our intellectual leaders who have the special advantages of our educational establishments.

"Our colleges and universities sow the seed of which the nation will reap the crop."

The 169th annual commencement exercises of the university, held earlier at the First Baptist Meeting House, saw honorary degrees conferred on nine distinguished educators, scientists and statesmen, by President Henry M. Wriston.

WOMEN HONORED

Doctor of laws degrees were also conferred on John Davison Rockefeller, Jr., class of 1897, chairman of the board of the Rockefeller Foundation; Dr. Warren Randolph Burgess, New York, deputy governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York; Professor Zechariah Chafee, Jr., Harvard law professor, and Professor James Pickwell Adams, vice-president of Brown University.

Doctor of Letters degrees were awarded to Dr. William Adams Slade, chief reference librarian of the Library of Congress, Washington, D. C., and Dr. Harris E. Starr, editor of Dictionary of American Biography.

Doctor of Science degrees went to Miss Maud Slye, professor of pathology at the University of Chicago, and Ernest Mahler, chemical engineer of Neenah, Wis.

Dr. Mary E. Woolley, retiring as president of Mt. Holyoke College and a member of the first graduating class after Brown admitted women students in 1894, was awarded the Rosenberger medal for "notable achievement" by a graduate, the highest honor the university can bestow.

Yale University

President James Rowland Angell, retiring as head of Yale University, sounded an attack on the national government and charged that President Franklin D. Roosevelt's proposed Supreme Court bill is a "violation of the Constitution."

Delivering his final baccalaureate address as part of the 236th Commencement exercises, Dr. Angell added:

"Certain it is that the Executive has promoted legislation which, if finally enacted, appears to imply the further and complete adbication of the Congress.

"It will require devoted men and women imbued with prophetic vision and inspired with dauntless resolution to salvage the inestimable values—moral, political and spiritual."

Northeastern Univ.

Two prominent retired educators and a former state commissioner of penal institutions will be among those to receive honorary degrees tonight, as 485 are graduated at Northeastern University.

Dr. Clyde Everett Wildman, president of DePauw University, Greencastle, Ind., will deliver the commencement address at the Boston Arena at 8 p. m. as 400 of the diplomas are awarded there.

Eighty-five other diplomas will be distributed to Northeastern graduates through the divisional schools at Providence, Worcester and Springfield.

Smith College

Northampton, June 21—Honorary degrees were conferred on Katharine Cornell, actress, and three others today at 464 graduates received diplomas at Smith College's 59th annual commencement.

Elizabeth Cutter Morrow, mother of Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, president of the Alumnae Association and a Smith trustee for 16 years, received an honorary doctor of humane letters degree with Miss Cornell.

CHIEF JUSTICE HUGHES CHARLES EVANS HUGHES, JR. CHARLES EVANS HUGHES, 3D

It's nothing new for Brown University to be honoring a Charles Evans Hughes, but today was the first occasion upon which the Providence institution ever honored three of them, at once. Here they are: Charles Evans Hughes, Sr., Brown '81; Charles Evans Hughes, Jr., Brown '09, and Charles Evans Hughes, 3d, Brown '37. Chief Supreme Court Justice Hughes addressed Brown's alumni association, at commencement exercises. Hughes, Jr., a New York attorney, received a doctor of laws degree. Hughes, 3d, a Phi Beta Kappa student like his father and grandfather, was one of the senior class orators.

Ten Colleges Graduate

Graduating classes marched beneath historic college portals for the last time today, as thousands of seniors received diplomas at commencement exercises of ten New England schools.

Wellesley College conferred degrees on 308 seniors and 33 graduate students, and entertained approximately 600 alumnae.

At Harvard, where commencement exercises will be held Thursday, senior week activities were in full swing, with the senior spread and dance at Lowell House tonight ushering in a week of festivity.

CLASS OF 1912 REUNION

More than 600 alumni of the class of 1912 assembled for their 25th reunion. The reunion meeting will start at 8 p. m. tonight in Rindge Technical high school auditorium, Cambridge street.

Luncheon for Radcliffe seniors at noon today featured the class day there, with the class reception and dance scheduled for 8 p. m. at the Dormitory Quadrangle, on Shepard street.

The annual alumni dinner of the New England Conservatory of Music will be held at 6:30 p. m. in Brown Hall. The commencement will be tomorrow at 2:30 p. m. in Jordan Hall.

OTHER EXERCISES

Other commencement exercises today were held at Brown University, Providence, R. I.; Smith College, Northampton; Williams College, Williamstown; Wheaton College, Norton, and Colby College, Waterville, Me.

Dr. William Ernest Hocking, professor of philosophy at Harvard, delivered the oration at Wheaton College, where President J. Edgar Park conferred degrees on 77 seniors.

WARNING BY CONANT

As the highlight of baccalaureate services which opened the academic week, President Conant of Harvard warned the graduating seniors:

"The intellectual conflict that has Europe up in arms is not absent in this country. On all sides we see too plainly the reflections of the European struggle.

"We feel the emotional violence of conflicting groups, each exerting its own social pressure, each bent on conformity. Not since the days immediately following the war have citizens of this country been subjected to such powerful forces."

Colby College

Waterville, Me., June 21—Two distinguished Maine writers, Edna St. Vincent Millay, poet, and Mary Ellen Chase, author, were awarded honorary degrees today at 116th annual commencement exercises of Colby College.

Miss Millay received the doctor of letters degree, and Miss Chase the doctor of humane letters degree.

Bachelor of Arts degrees were conferred on 210 seniors, 171 to men and 39 to women.

Other honorary degrees went to Ira Lloyd Letts, Providence, R. I., former assistant Attorney-General of United States, doctor of laws; Rufus M. Jones, professor emeritus of Haverford College, doctor of sacred theology; Dr. Harris P. Mosher, Harvard medical school professor, doctor of science. Leslie Brainard Arey, Northwestern University medical school professor, doctor of science; Stephen Stark, Mt. Hermon educator, and Elmer Elsworth Parmenter, Portland educator, doctors of education.

As commencement speaker, Letts urged the graduate to lead a movement for a re-awakened understanding and acceptance of Christian faith.

Taft Predicts End Of Dictator Rule

Rochester, N. Y., June 21 (AP)—The University of Rochester graduating class heard today from Charles P. Taft, recently named as a mediator in the steel strike, a prediction of a world-wide return to democracy.

Taft's message was read to the graduates by President Alan Valentine, since Taft was detained in Cleveland for a strike conference.

Said Taft:

"I believe that dictatorships that threaten our peace today have in them the seeds of their own destruction, and that no outside force from us or anyone else can bring the return of democracy any more quickly than it is coming now."

Turning to the United States, Taft asked:

"Do you have to have Jim Farley and spoils in order to have Franklin D. Roosevelt?

"I'm here to tell you that you have honest local government and you can take part in politics without getting dirt on your hands. If you can do it there, you can do it beyond that in state and national policies."

Holiday Makers Face Call For 'National Bridal Day'

By BETTY ALDEN

WE HAVE A nationally recognized Mother's Day, Father's Day, Tree Day, Flag Day and a great many other days . . . and if the important individuals who designate holidays should decide to have a bridal day, the next to the last Saturday in June would probably be their choice . . .

MARGARET EUSTIS

Last Saturday, being that day, was a festival of orange blossoms, satin, tulle and old family lace and the descriptions of wedding ceremonies occupied so much space in the social columns that announcements of new alliances . . . which will perhaps culminate in bridals next June . . . were temporarily forced into the background . . .

A surprise awaited the guests at the wedding reception of Margaret Bradley of Milton following her marriage to John Sherman . . . for after a round of toasts to the bridal couple the news was spread around that the maid of honor, Nancy Moller, was to become the next bride of the family . . . Nancy chose this festive occasion to announce to her friends that she is to be married to John Howland of New York, son of Mrs. Charles Prentiss Howland . . .

Nancy is the step-daughter of Mrs. Kenneth Moller of Milton and step-sister of Peggy, who is Mrs. Mollers' own daughter . . . Nancy's parents were the late Kenneth Moller and Elizabeth Sweetser Moller . . . She made her debut in the 1933-34 season following her graduation from St. Timothy's School in Maryland, and is a member of the Junior League and Vincent Club . . . She is a niece of Mrs. Charles Moorfield Storey, Mr. Homer Sweetser, Mr. John Anderson Sweetser and Mr. Frank Eliot Sweetser . . . She is a sister of Mrs. Paul Brooks (Susan Moller) of Kendal Green, Mrs. Robert Sanderson (Elizabeth S. Moller) of Dedham, of Kenneth Moller, Jr., and Cynthia Moller . . .

Mr. Howland prepared for college at Milton Academy and was graduated from Yale University in 1933 . . .

* * *

Margaret Eustis Betrothed

Another attractive Milton post debutante chose this past week-end to reveal her betrothal . . . She is Margaret Eustis, daughter of Frederic Augustus Eustis, who announced her engagement to Thomas Gray Curtis, son of Mrs. Frederick William Curtis of Minneapolis . . .

The bride-to-be made her debut in the season of 1934-35 and is also a member of the Junior League and Vincent Club . . . She has just completed a two-year course at Sarah Lawrence Junior College . . .

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Sigourney of Belmont announce the engagement of Mr. Sigourney's daughter, Amelie Sigourney, to Douglas Channing Scott, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Scott of Cambridge and Huntington, L. I. . . .

Miss Sigourney is the daughter of Mrs. Alfred G. Kellogg of Boston . . . She is a graduate of the Buckingham School in Cambridge and is a member of the Junior class at Radcliffe . . . Her sisters are Mrs. John Wooldredge of Marblehead and Mrs. Frank W. Knowlton, Jr. of Brookline . . . Henry Sigourney of Belmont is her brother . . .

The future bridegroom's mother was the late Mary Channing Eustis Scott, member of a socially prominent Milton family . . . Mr. Scott is a graduate of the Berkshire School and of Harvard with the class of 1935 . . . He is a brother of Donald Scott, Jr. of England . . . Miss Sigourney has not, as yet, disclosed her wedding plans . . .

Brides in Tin Funnels

Of all the thousands of brides who dressed themselves in billowy tulle and soft satins on Saturday, we know of at least one hundred and fifty who did not subscribe to the traditional costume . . . Members of the class of 1927 who returned for their tenth reunion at Smith, called themselves brides in "tinth" anniversary costumes . . . which consisted of long green bridal veils falling from tin funnels inverted on their heads, and carrying bouquets of tin spoons, knives, and forks with a shower of cookie cutters dangling from green ribbons . . .

Eleanor Lamont Cunningham of Milton, who is sailing soon for Europe, went back to Northampton for the week-end to reune with her class, 1932 . . . these girls were celebrating their fifth reunion, and their costumes of brilliant colored peasant linens, and their song to the tune of the Volga Boatman, satirized modern industrial and economic problems so well that they won both the prize for best costume and the cup for the cleverest song of a reunion class . . .

Lodge Party at Magnolia Casino

Massachusetts' junior senator, Henry Cabot Lodge of Beverly, took advantage of the festive evening at the Casino in Magnolia, Saturday night, to temporarily forget the problems of politics and minority groups and enjoy an evening of relaxation with his North Shore friends. In Senator Lodge's party were Mr. and Mrs. Richard C. Storey and Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Coolidge. Mrs. Coolidge made a charming picture as she danced with Mr. Lodge, dressed in a formal white cotton frock with an American Beauty velvet bow on the front, just the shade of the long velvet wrap which was draped over her chair while she was inside the Casino . . . Mrs. Storey's white satin gown was splashed with crimson flowers . . .

Pat Phelan's birthday party was one of the merriest gatherings in the large circular dining room . . . and will be recorded in the Phelan's memory books as one of the few occasions when all three of the girls, Pat, Ginny and Priscilla, were dressed alike in white gowns lavishly encrusted with brilliants . . . each was embroidered with a slightly different pattern . . . Among their guests were a number of out-of-town friends as well as their cousins, Moira and Cappy, Tony Sargent, Philip Mason and John Simonds . . .

Dottie Pierce was having a last fling at North Shore night life before departing on a North Cape cruise on the Franconia and danced equally as gracefully with Phil Tucker and Standish Van Voorhis . . . Dottie Preston made a foursome of their party and looked very modish in a semi-formal dress of deep rose chiffon . . .

HAWAII IN SUMMER SEEMED FAR AWAY BUT A BRIEF WEEK AGO

When the photographer snapped this picture several days ago, the young ladies gave their names as Mrs. Wallace Lincoln Pierce, and Miss Catherine Buff. But on Saturday Miss Buff became Mrs. Robert W. Scott at a lovely ceremony in the Leslie Lindsey Memorial Chapel of Emmanuel Church. The bride and bridegroom are now enroute to Hawaii where they will spend the summer.

Tosi-Albre, McNamara-Cassidy Nuptials Share Week-End Honors

Romance limelight of the week-end was shared by the Tosi-Albre nuptials and the McNamara-Cassidy marital alliance. Both took place at ten o'clock Saturday and were followed by receptions at the Copley-Plaza.

SIX ATTENDANTS

Six attendants preceded her altarward . . . petite Mary Albre led the way . . . followed in turn by Virginia Grimes, Albina Balboni, Ruth Piotti and Mrs. Reinhold Bukow, Jr., of Long Island, N. Y. They were similarly attired in chartreuse marquisette in Empire style . . . wreaths of violets in their hair . . . carrying arm bouquets of lilac larkspur and delphinium.

Carlos Tosi performed his role of best man most efficiently . . . Assisting in the task of ushering were Major Peter Borre of Newton, Lorenzo Albre, Jr. . . . brother of the bride and two of the bridegroom's brothers, Renzo and Ernest Tosi of Brookline.

Others seating guests at the ceremony and breakfast were Sylvio Merola of Newton, Domenic Longo of Hartford, Conn., Alfred Carrideo of Groton, Charles McCarthy of Belmont, Frederick Magaletto of Westwood and William Mudge, Jr., of Glen Cove, Long Island.

A single orchid lent accent to the dusty ping sheer ensemble which the bride's mother, Mrs. Lorenzo Albre, chose . . . soft pink orchids were an effective contrast with the lilac shaded jacketed frock worn by the groom's mother, Mrs. Umberto Tosi.

CLUB MEMBERS ON HAND

A group of Junior Philomatheia girls were present at the reception . . . Pal has always been an active member of the club . . . Dorothy Cranell breakfasted with Mary Dowd escorted by John Kelly . . . Frances Rattigan . . . whose white crepe cape suit was banded in colorful Persian print . . . danced about with Dr. John Monahan.

Across the lobby in the Sheraton Room . . . friends and relatives of Marion and Bernie were holding forth at their breakfast . . . after their wedding at St. Thomas in Jamaica Plain.

Marion wore the customary white satin . . . a classic princess lines topped by a very fine veil of tulle which fell from a wreath of orange blossoms.

Marion's attendant chose tailored frocks . . . Beneath long coats of confetti-colored marquisette they wore rustling frocks of taffeta . . . the same material fashioning the crown of their leghorn hats. Talisman roses and delphinium were their flowers.

In the group was a trio of Marion's classmates at Emmanuel . . . Kay Field, Anne O'Reilly Carven and Claire O'Brien. Another member of the bridal group was Frances Ellis of Brookline who sails for Europe on the 29th of this month.

Kay Donovan . . . who was Marion's honor attendant . . . was exceptionally attractive in her hyacinth marquisette . . . set off by a poke to bonnet of leghorn . . . tiny rosebuds outlining the inner brim.

Bernie's brother Bill did best man duties and ushering was detailed to Gerry Moore, Harry Rockett, Joseph O'Reilly, Joseph Carven and Fred Moore of Brighton.

Mrs. Cassidy was equally as smart as her daughter . . . soft hyacinth lace fashioned her jacket frock . . . a matching horsehair hat and corsage of orchids completed the outfit. Mrs. McNamara's cafe-au-lait sheer banded with lace was worn with a large transparent black hat.

Matthews Wedding Interests Society

Boston society is interested in the announcement by Mrs. Samuel Frothingham of Lenox of the marriage of her daughter, Mrs. Frothingham Manning, to Warren Sheperd Matthews of New York.

The bride is related to members of the Frothingham family in Boston and is the daughter of the late Samuel Frothingham.

The wedding took place Saturday afternoon in the garden of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Frothingham, Jr., at Bedford Hills, New York. Only the immediate families were present at the ceremony.

Mr. Matthews is the son of Mrs. Edward A. Matthews of Pasadena, Cal. He was graduated from Princeton in 1912 and is a prominent architect.

TURN ABOUT, FAIR PLAY

Turn about is fair play, according to the familiar old maxim, so as soon as Patty Spencer of West Newton made her debut in Boston and entertained her house guests at a dinner party, she departed for New York where she was a member of the receiving line at the coming out party of one of her intimate friends at Westover School who had been here to attend Patty's debut. The New York party was given for Miss Reid Handy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Truman Parker Handy, in the garden of their estate at Riverdale-on-Hudson . . . Nancy Dwinnell, who made her debut last winter in New York as well as Boston, and Nancy Salomon, who was a house guest of Miss Spencer's last Thursday and Friday for the latter's debut party at the Ritz, were also honored by being invited to receive at Miss Handy's presentation tea.

GARDEN WEDDING

Miss Catherine Farley Osgood of Bennington, Vt., daughter of Mrs. George Laurie Osgood, Jr., of New York and Boston, was married yesterday to Thomas Henry Foster, Jr., son of Mrs. Thomas H. Foster of Old Bennington, and the late Mr. Foster. The wedding took place in the garden at the summer home home of Mrs. Charles L. Rogers of St. Louis, in Greene, New York.

The bride, whose father was the late George L. Osgood of Boston, was given away by her godfather, Gilbert Russell of Belmont, and East Orleans, Cape Cod. Mrs. William E. Haskell of New York was matron of honor for her sister, and Richard Hall of Old Bennington was best man.

The newly married couple will make their home in Old Bennington. The bride is a graduate of Mt. Holyoke with the class of 1930 and received her M. A. there in 1931. She is a member of the faculty at Bennington College, and her husband is in business in Old Bennington.

PLEDGE VOWS

Another bride who has selected the month of roses in which to pledge her marriage vows is Miss Mary Victoria Stevens of Plainfield, N. J., whose bridegroom-to-be is Dr. Merton Griswold, Jr., son of Dr. and Mrs. Merton Griswold of Uxbridge, Mass. The wedding will take place in All Souls Unitarian Church, Plainfield, the evening of June 30th, followed by a reception at the Stevens residence. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horace N. Stevens.

Stanley M. Griswold of Boston will attend his brother as best man, and included among the ushers will be Horace N. Stevens, Jr., of Andover, brother of the bride.

Film Held Over In Wellesley

"Lost Horizon," Columbia's magnificent film adaptation of James Hilton's best seller, will be shown three additional days, starting today at 2:30 p. m., at the Community Playhouse in Wellesley Hills so great has been the demand to see this picture. The original engagement had been limited to one week.

The Frank Capra directed picture, starring Ronald Colman, played a five weeks' roadshow engagement at the Shubert.

No other American city of Wellesley's size, it is said, ever played a picture for nine consecutive days (Wellesley's population is approximately 12,000) and, consequently, "Lost Horizon" hangs up a record. Two performances are played daily, and all seats are reserved.

'Blonde Dynamo' At Howard

Evelyn Myers, "the blonde dynamo," comes back to the Old Howard for a return engagement this week together with the lavish production, the "French Follies" burlesquers. This sensational interpretive dancer is a Hub favorite.

Evelyn Myers

The "French Follies," a new production with new scenery and new costumes, is showing here for the first time. Its cast includes such popular performers as Charles "Red" Marshall, top burlesque comedian; Mabel Francis, dancer; Mike Sacks, comic; Mimi Reed, Murray Leonard, Tom Bundy, Dolores Dawn, Milt Bronson, Dolores DeLand and Alice Kennedy.

Included in the cast of 50 is a chorus of 25 lightly dressed lovelies who sing and dance.

The accompanying screen attractions are "White Legion," with Ian Keith and Tala Birrell and "Devil on Horseback," with Lili Damita and Fred Keating.

The Old Howard daily shows are at 12 noon, 2:30 and 8:30 p. m. Every Friday night there is a special midnight performance starting at 11:30 p. m.

BOSTON after DARK

ALTHOUGH this is by no means a political pillar, it must be chronicled that [illegible] comes up with something surprising, the palsy-walsy association of Mayor Mansfield and John I. Fitzgerald, pres. of the city council, is threatening to dissolve any time now—for instance, when John I. puts it squarely up to the mayor to back the Fitz mayoral candidacy . . . (They'll soon have to put some of these entries in the field, but of course not John I.) . . . Well, when you skin the hide off of the situation it looks something like this: Mayor Freddy and Fitz have been buddies for three years . . . Partially as a result of this, the West Ender holds the honor of being a council chief three times running, the only lad to win this honor . . . Mansfield is skedded to support Cong. John W. McCormack, if the McCormack family difference over John's running for mayor winds up in favor of his candidacy . . . Fitz believes the mayor should support him, in the manner of old pal o' mine . . . But Mayor Freddy, like an architect, has other plans, even if McCormack doesn't run . . . So the storm signals are flying . . .

GEORGE HOLLAND

Dancer in the Dark:

Mrs. Benny Meroff (she was Florence Gast, the Broadway dancer) recently bought a 3-month Great Dane pup for their 8-yr-old dotter, Dianne, for whom the Meroff jibe swing band (Revere's Nautical Plaza) theme song is titled . . . Florence was feeding the beast with great quantities of beef when in walked a friend who knows dogs, and the friend nearly had the horrors . . . In no little embarrassment, the bandman's missus learned that when a Great Dane passes his first puppyhood you've gotta put his fodder on a chair, on account of his weight, if he keeps bending down to the floor to chow, will make him bowlegged . . . The Dane is named Jiber, but he answers better if you say simply, "Meat" . . .

Not so many years back, the Old Blue Ass'n, tagged for the biggest of the Blue Hills, bought a Hingham land tract for their chowder fests and also for a song . . . The rag-tag place wasn't much but was one where you could make noise . . . Then the state put two roads through and the Old Blues found their cabin was at the junction of Routes 3 and 128 . . . Now they've been offered 20 G's for the spot, which isn't chowder . . . But they're just yawning . . .

Once Over Lightly:

Those Dow Kennels and Art Wilson Kennels at Wonderland Park (There Goes Swifty) are one and the same . . . And Tom Keady, Dartmouth athletic oldster and college and high school grid coach, gets plenty of guidance in his job as race sec. at Revere . . . Turk Harris, who held the job last year, still there and acting as Keady's advisor . . . Gov. Hurley has definitely lost the support of Republican Frank Brooks of the exec. council, on whom Hurley once depended . . . Parole board trouble . . .

Yankee sky-riders interested in a new chocolate composition devised for aviator eating and just put on British market . . . Finely ground Indian meal and albumen said to be among the ingredients . . . British Air Ministry has accepted it as an approved concentrated ration . . . And the newest Hub epicurean delicacy for the icebox and nite nibbles is smoked chicken . . . It comes wrapped in cellophane in a little market basket . . .

'Jo Hutch' Slated for Glamour

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Universal Service Motion Picture Editor
(Copyright, 1937, by Universal Service)

Los Angeles, June 21—You're going to see red-headed Josephine Hutchinson as a glamour girl. That is what Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer intends to do with her—utilize her charm, her titian locks and build her for screen stardom.

She and Warners have parted amicably after three years' association during which time she has appeared in many pictures, mostly in movies where clothes did not count. But she did some great trouping, with "Oil for the Lamps of China" figuring as her best work.

Louella O. Parsons

Maybe the same thing will happen to Jo that happened to Myrna Loy. Myrna played Oriental sirens until she decided to play straight dramatic roles and from then on a new chapter was written for her. The first Hutchinson drama on the new M-G-M contract is expected to be opposite Clark Gable in "The Great Canadian."

Hal Roach may be taking himself to Italy before many days. He has received a most interesting proposition to produce pictures in the Mussolini domain and since the tendency of all our Hollywood producers seems to be to keep an eye on the valuable foreign market, it seems likely that Hal will at least investigate the offer, which came to him by cable. In case he decides to go abroad he will make the trip with Mrs. Roach early in July, remaining abroad only a few weeks.

"A Day at the Races" has certainly boosted the Marx brothers' stock sky high. Now the boys are sitting back and listening to offers galore from all the studios, for this is their very last comedy on their Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer contract. One of the most interesting propositions is the RKO offer, which, I am told, means "Room Service." Groucho, who sings and dances; Chico, who plays the piano, and Harpo, who harps, were originally sought for "Radio Revels," but Leo Spitz, I hear from reliable source, would love to see them in the Broadway comedy hit, "Room Service"—so don't be surprised if such a contract is made.

A Line or Two: Definite denial was made Saturday that Reknowned Artists (financed by San Francisco money) had folded its tent. However, it is true that Tay Garnett has withdrawn from the company and is taking with him "Trade Winds." Ronald Colman reaches here today, when he will decide on his Reknowned contract . . . the Barrymores, John and Lionel, will soon be meeting on the Paramount lot. John inherits the late Sir Guy Standing's role of Inspector Neilson in "Bulldog Drummond Strikes Back," and Lionel has an important role in "Wells Fargo" . . . Esther Muir certainly deserved a break in our review on "A Day at the Races"—she is excellent — sorry for the omission of her name.

Snapshots of Hollywood

ANNE NAGEL, pretty widow of ROSS ALEXANDER, and EDDIE SUTHERLAND together at the Hawaiian Paradise; TOWNSEND NETCHER out on a sight seeing tour of the town with ADRIENNE AMES. They were chaperoned by CARY GRANT and the ALLEN TOMBLING; MRS. JOCK WHITNEY celebrating her birthday with a small cocktail party; FRANCIS LEDERER and MARGO celebrating the first anniversary of their meeting and taking with them JERRY ASHER, the cupid who introduced them; MARY BRIAN with three mail boxes stolen in two weeks is putting "Susie Glutz" on now to fool the visiting firemen; the lump on BRUCE CABOT'S head was really caused by a flying ring in the Hollywood Athletic Club gym—and not by flying fists; dining tete-a-tete at the Cafe Lamaze — JOAN BENNETT and ROBERT BENCHLEY, GLORIA SWANSON and GEORGE KAUFMAN, MARGOT GRAHAME and a visiting movie magnate; MRS. LIONEL ATWILL back in town 50 pounds lighter. You wouldn't know her she looks so grand.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

SAY 'NO' TO MUSIC

Robert Armstrong and Irene Hervey in Grand National's elaborate romantic comedy drama "The Girl Who Said No" which will have its world premiere tomorrow at the Shubert.

New Gayety Revue 'Has Something'

The New Gayety Theater, initiating its new and distinctive entertainment policy last night with the presentation of "Parlez Vous Paree," musical comedy revue, with a company of 55 internationally known European and American stage favorites, seems to have "something."

Sunday night's opening audience filled the house to capacity and was as enthusiastic as it was large. Among the revue's well-known performers are Babe Lewis, Lloyd Cooney, Virginia Forrest, Del Smith, Millie Girdeller, Alice Pizzo, the Parker Brothers, Gordon Bennet and Babette Fontaine.

"Parlez Vous Paree" boasts 16 lavish musical numbers, 12 elaborate stage settings, a brace of Parisian models direct from the French capital's Club Paree

World Premiere at Shubert To Draw Social Prominents

Frank Moulan, Gilbert and Sullivan favorite who is featured in Grand National's lavish romantic comedy drama, "The Girl Said No," opening at the Shubert tomorrow night, arrives in Boston today.

He will attend the picture's formal opening which is a world premiere and is expected to be a knee-deep-in-miniver Hollywood affair with most of the town's social prominents now in town in attendance.

Boston was selected for the world premiere because it was at the Boston Museum in 1878 that the first Gilbert and Sullivan opera was given in America and "The Girl Said No" is the first motion picture ever to record the music and sequences of the immortal Gilbert and Sullivan works.

Reminded of these vital statistics, Moulan told Ed Finney, advertising and publicity director for Grand National Films, Inc.:

"I'm going to be there; that's a real event and I want to be part of it. And besides, I've a decidedly warm spot in my heart for Boston where it was my pleasure to appear many times in the very same Gilbert and Sullivan operettas to be found in this picture."

Besides making his appearance on the Shubert stage at tomorrow's opening, Mr. Moulan will be heard over a number of radio networks during his stay here. He also will be a guest at several official luncheons and dinners.

"Your Figure, Madame!"

How Is Your Standing? It's Posture That Counts

By IDA JEAN KAIN

(Copyright, 1937, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

POSTURE is the backbone of a beautiful figure. The value of good posture as a figure exercise is illustrated perfectly by the curvesome Joan Blondell.

By her own admission, this lovely star does not exercise; from analysis other posture, I find that she exercises all the time, because holding herself correctly is so important to her.

"That's the one thing I ever did right—I always stood up straight," she said. Miss Blondell doesn't need to look in a mirror to see how he stands. She can tell by her waistline: "One should always feel tight about the waistline," Joan explained, "with the muscles firm."

Standing as tall as possible gives you muscular control—but don't think it isn't exercise! Girls who slump are not using their muscles. They simply drape their weight on their bones and let their ligaments—not their muscles—do the work.

Standing erect is no effort for Joan, who has trained the right muscles to carry her weight. Even as a little girl she used to bring home the posture prizes.

Joan Blondell is a firm believer in what posture can do for the figure. "You can be pretty heavy, and if you carry yourself well, with tummy, back and hips flat, your curves will be in the right places," she advises.

She has never worn a girdle, she has always seen to it that her muscles were strong enough to hold her figure in line. Never, at any time, were these muscles allowed to become flabby. After the arrival of her son, she went right to work on corrective exercises to restore the stretched muscles to normal tone.

Today her perfect measurements are: Bust, 35 inches; waist, 26 inches; and hips, 37 inches. Without muscular streamlining she would appear large on the screen. She is able to keep her weight at the optimum because of good muscle tone and no flabby fat.

According to this posture-perfect star, posture is even a cure for weak ankles. Here's the way to do it: Stand with knee caps turned slightly out, and with the weight falling squarely on the ball of the feet. This position throws most of the weight to the outer borders of the feet, thereby strengthening ankles and arches. You might practice the exercise several times a day.

Never stand with the weight on the heels or on one foot, if you want to keep your figure in lovely alignment. Always stand as tall as possible. Stand, sit and walk beautifully, and you won't need special exercise.

The "General Exercises to Keep You Trim and Fit as a Fiddle" will strengthen your muscles for the maintenance of lovely posture, which is, in itself, an exercise. For this leaflet, send a stamped, addressed envelope, to Ida Jean Kain, in care of the Boston Evening American.

GOOD MANNERS

THANKS

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Will you please give me a form to follow for letters of thanks for gifts I have received for my new home? I haven't any idea how such letters should be worded. R.

The general formula for a letter of thanks of this kind is first to thank the giver for the thought that prompted sending the gift, and then, specifically mentioning the gift by name, thank for the gift and comment generously on its beauty and the use it will have in your new home. Somewhat like this:

Dearest Mary:

What dear friends you and Tom are! You're always planning such kind and generous gestures . . . and now you've given us a masterpiece for our new home. Our hearts are full of appreciation to you both. Thank you, thank you for your goodness.

The coffee table is a perfect beauty. And how we have wanted one . . . the space before our sofa in the living-room cried for one! It's the perfect type, the walnut matches the walnut in the rest of our living-room furniture (you would plan that), and it's just the right size. So you see it is a masterpiece.

Jack and I want very much to have you and Tom dine with us as soon as possible. May I call you up about coming some evening next week? Then we'll have after-dinner coffee on "our" table.

Dearest love and deepest thanks to you both, from Jack and me.

Affectionately,

CORSAGE

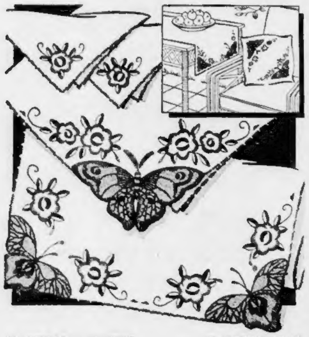
DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

On which shoulder should a corsage be worn—right or left?

Usually a corsage is worn on the right shoulder, but there is no special rule about this.

Laura Wheeler

Airy Note for Summer Linens



BUTTERFLY MOTIFS PATTERN 1514

TOUCH pillows, scarfs or refreshment linens with the airiness of appliqued butterflies, plus a few quickly embroidered flower motifs, and see how inviting they'll become!

Pattern 1514 contains a transfer pattern of two motifs 8¼ x 8¼ inches, two motifs 6½ x 6½ inches, two motifs 3¼ x 10¼ inches, six motifs 1¾ x 2¼ inches and applique patches; color suggestions; illustrations of all stitches used; material requirements.

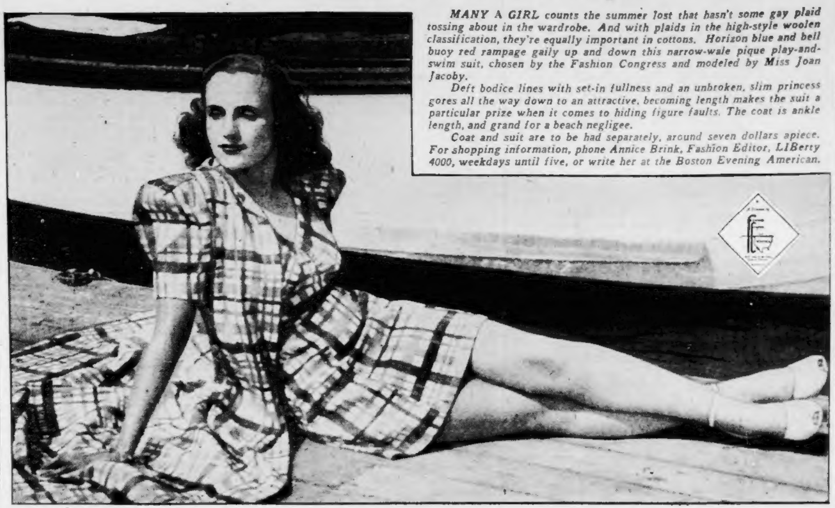
Send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) for this pattern to Boston Evening American, Needlecraft Dept., 82 Eighth avenue, New York, N. Y. Write plainly pattern number, your name and address.

Play or Laze in Plaid Pique

MANY A GIRL counts the summer lost that hasn't some gay plaid tossing about in the wardrobe. And with plaids in the high-style woolen classification, they're equally important in cottons. Horizon blue and bell buoy red rampage gaily up and down this narrow-wale pique play-and-swim suit, chosen by the Fashion Congress and modeled by Miss Joan Jacoby.

Deft bodice lines with set-in fullness and an unbroken, slim princess gores all the way down to an attractive, becoming length makes the suit a particular prize when it comes to hiding figure faults. The coat is ankle length, and grand for a beach negligee.

Coat and suit are to be had separately, around seven dollars apiece. For shopping information, phone Annice Brink, Fashion Editor, LIBerty 4000, weekdays until five, or write her at the Boston Evening American.



Bridge

The Vital First Trick

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

One of the cleverest Bridge players I know has a favorite theory to the effect that 85 per cent of hands are won or lost on the first trick.

His estimate is, I think, a trifle high. But it cannot be denied that the first trick—meaning the opening lead and declarer's play—is vitally important.

North:
♠ Q J 9 4
♡ 10 8 5 3
◇ A K
♣ K 8 5

West:
♠ K 5 3
♡ J 7 6 2
◇ Q J 4 3 2
♣ 10

East:
♠ 8
♡ A 9 4
◇ 10 7 5
♣ Q J 7 4 3 2

South:
♡ K Q
◇ 9 8 6
♣ A 9 6

The biddings:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

South felt that he was a little too weak to make an asking bid over the three-spade bid, and contented himself with game.

West opened the ten of clubs. Declarer rapidly scanned his possible losers and saw that one club, one heart and one spade (if the finesse were off-side) seemed the limit. Obviously, he could afford to lose these tricks and still make his contract.

So, on the off-hand assumption that it did not matter where he won the opening lead, and in haste to finesse spades he put up dummy's club King. The spade finesse lost to West and, as the only quick way of putting East on lead, West shifted to his fourth-best heart. East won, and led the club Queen through declarer.

The Ace was ruffed away, and declarer still had to lose another club, which meant defeat.

Declarer's estimate of possible losers had been correct, but he still had committed a grievous error in the insurance department. The one apparent danger was that one of his Aces or Kings would be ruffed from under him.

The opening lead of the club ten should have been accepted as positive evidence that West did not hold the Queen or Jack; therefore, that East could not have a singleton club. But there was a distinct possibility that West had such a club holding.

The spade King in East's hand could not be an entry but the heart Ace could be. If the trump finesse were to lose and East were to get the lead with the heart Ace, it would be vital to protect one of declarer's club honors from ruffing. This could not be done by playing the King at the first trick because that would leave the Ace exposed to a "lead-through" by East.

Had declarer properly won the first trick with the club Ace, entered dummy with a diamond and finessed the spade, the contract would have been ironclad. West would win and, as before, put East on lead with the heart Ace. But, now, a club return would do the defenders no good.

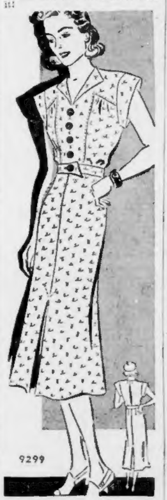
It Needs No Ironing

MARIAN MARTIN PATTERN 9299

Saucy, gay, styled for fun and merriment is Pattern 9299, the dream-frock of every carefree Miss who'd get out and get going in the summer sun.

It takes but a jiffy to run up the few simple seams of this casual frock, for every direction for its making is included in the Complete Diagrammed Marian Martin Sew Chart which accompanies Pattern 9299.

Wherever you go, whatever you do, you'll realize the utmost freedom in sleeves that are scarcely more than wide bands, and in three inverted pleats that supply their share of fullness. Make this up in a gay, sporty seersucker and you need never iron it!



Or, make it up in crash, linen, shantung or pique, and there'll be loud cheers from the gallery on its jauntiness and dash. Send for the pattern today!

Pattern 9299 may be ordered only in misses' and women's sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 16 requires 3⅛ yards 36-inch fabric.

Send 15 cents in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for each Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your size, name, address and style number.

Get the new summer edition of the Marian Martin pattern book, and revel in its fascinating, easy-to-make styles! View the blushing bride, the dashing deb, the tiny tot. Learn how to dress for new slenderness! See what's being worn for fun and sun.

Note how every woman's fabric and sewing problem is solved with simplified Marian Martin patterns. Summer make-up hints! Book 15 cents. Pattern 15 cents. Twenty-five cents for both when ordered together.

A Rare H-Air Conditioner

It Rules Your Waves While You Sleep

By ARLINE GOULD

MAYBE it's because our hair has such a sad way of letting us down right after we've been to the hairdresser's that we feel the way we do over a new and grand air-conditioned cap.

It's a wide, lacy lastex affair and you put it over your hair at night after you've brushed and combed the waves and curls into place.

It rules the waves—gently but firmly. A finger wave lasts twice as long with this tender nightly restraint and the time and money you will save on visits under the "blower" will more than pay for the cap many times over.

We can't help but feel that it is a cap of innumerable virtues. For one thing it lets the air circulate through the hair and fits so beautifully that it is bound to stay in place—day or night.

And then it is so soft and weighs so little that you don't know you have had one. The gentle pressure of the lastex edge leaves no telltale line on skin or hair.

But perhaps its greatest talent—and certainly the one for which it will be remembered longest—is that it "stays put" without being anchored under the chin.

There are matching satin ribbons on the cap to tie there (just in case you happen to be old-fashioned), but we hope even restless sleepers will use them only to tighten the band.

There are other uses for it, too. Use it while making up, to keep cream and powder from getting on your hair. Use it while dressing, to protect your coiffure.

And last but by no means least (this is really important), use it under a bathing cap to keep your wave as sleekly lovely as though you had just had it set.

You can wash it as often as you like, simply by squeezing it in soapy water. It will keep its elasticity indefinitely, and in fact, its stretch life will probably outwear its looks.

It comes in two sizes, medium and large and in six lovely colors—blonde, brown, black, white, blue and tearose. It is not expensive and large, and in six lovely colors tions department of one large down-town store.

To learn the name of this washable air-conditioner, call Arline Gould, Liberty 4000, weekdays until 5, or write to her at the Boston Evening American, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Fashion Flashes

The smartest compliment to the new summery frocks is a tan which is clear, even and healthy. The flattering shade is achieved by thin coatings of cosmetic preparations which filter the sun rays in a highly satisfactory manner. An exclusive line of beauty aids carries a complete kit of make-up with rouge and lipstick in colors which blend perfectly with the light sun tones.

The soft coffee and milk complexion marks a happy medium between the extreme brown and the milk white, the beige tone being especially suitable to both blonde and brunette types. However, the white complexion is not completely passe and if you must be "pale face" this summer you can be that also with very good grace.

Rally 'Round the Bean Tin

FROM MARTHA LEE'S MONDAY MORNING BROADCAST OVER STATION WMEX.

Well, we couldn't think of Saturday night without the beans, but during the summer months we like to vary the preparation a bit.

Baked beans heated in individual pots, or baked in green pepper case or in large onion or tomatoes, make an attractive way of serving them for bridge luncheons or buffet suppers.

Canned baked beans have the mellow flavor that comes from slow cooking, just the same as that which housewives strive for at home, but of course there is little or no labor connected with the serving of the canned style.

Here are some new ways to serve baked beans:

BOSTON BEAN PARTY

1 onion, chopped
1 green pepper, chopped
1 large can oven baked beans, Boston style
1 teaspoon sugar
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon prepared brown or yellow mustard
2 teaspoons molasses
Bacon

Brown onion and green pepper in fat which has been fried out from 2 slices of bacon. Add beans, sugar, salt, mustard and molasses. Pour into baking dish, or individual bean pots, cover with strips of bacon and bake in a moderate oven (375 F.) until bacon is crisp.

CHAPTER 39

"I'm going to clear out. I'm going over to Mom's. If you want to keep up the fiction you can say I'm out of town, or over there to help with the fall cleaning, or any lie you like.

"And before I go I want to say just one more thing, that I've known all along about your friend Walter Carson's divorce, and why his wife is getting it, and that's ONE piece of wool you didn't pull over my eyes."

She tried to answer. "Oh, you—you—Oh, how can you even THINK—"

Edward was stuffing clothes into a suitcase.

To escape from him, she fled to the bathroom, the only place where anyone can get away from everyone else in a three-room apartment, with four people in it.

Julie's face was red, and Charlie was humming, when, somewhat calmed by cold water and quiet, Marie finally put in an appearance in the kitchen where they were having breakfast.

Nobody appeared to hear when Edward walked through the living room and out the front door. They all begin to talk at once:

"The weather report says probable showers—"

"I heated up some rolls, but if you'd rather have toast—"

"Oh! Excuse me. I thought I heard the telephone!"

And then they all stopped.

Marie looked at Charlie, whose eyes slid away. She looked at her mother, and her mother looked down at the tablecloth.

"Oh, why PRETEND!" she cried. "Even Edward said that! We're all worn out pretending—all of us. You heard it all. You were right all the time! It didn't work!"

* * *

Julie supervised the packing. She kept Charlie busy running here and there for rope and boxes and excelsior and strong wrapping paper.

"All the stuff a person accumulates, even in a few short months! What's this? Looks like curtains!"

Marie opened the package. The pink curtains she bought for the old sleping porch in the Wilson house. Her hand caressed them gently. She felt a little apologetic toward them. They'd never had a chance.

A few tears fell. But nobody noticed particularly because nearly everything made her cry.

"It's just nerves—don't MIND me. If we stopped every time I cried, we'd never get packed.

"What'll I do with all this silver?" Charlie asked. "Do you want to keep it in this big chest it's in? It weighs a ton."

A FAUX PAS

"I don't care if it weighs two tons. It's the only thing I'm salvaging from the wreckage," Marie said. "That and my job. Did I tell you Walt said he could use me in Los Angeles just the same?"

"Yes, you told us," Julie said. "Walt's always been good. I always liked Walt. But I wish he wasn't getting that divorce. I hate thinking of Walt a divorced man. He and Flo were the happiest kids when they were first married . . . Oh, darling!

"I'm sorry! That was tactful of me, wasn't it? But you've got to overlook your blundering, old fool of a mother!"

Marie sniffed, wiped her eyes. "Well, it's kind of funny. Worrying about Walt's divorce when your own daughter will be getting one, too.

"And since you bring up the point, Edward and I were happy once. We were terribly happy. I know you don't believe much in love—"

"I DON'T?"

ADVICE on LOVE and MARRIAGE -:- By Beatrice Fairfax

Girl Reader Learns How To Get Rid of Rival Who Intrudes

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Not long ago I was hurt, and my boy friend was very nice and attentive and brought me all sorts of things.

But a certain girl would always show up, whenever she knew my boy friend was calling.

Now that I am better and have dates with my friend, she tags along, and I can't tell her to go home or that she can't go with us.

The boy friend doesn't like it, and he has told me he's not coming 'round any more.

Please tell me what to do. I don't want to hurt the girl's feelings.

HELPLESS.

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

This is a question whether people who have skins as tough as a rhinoceros' hide have any feelings to hurt.

The next time this girl has a date with the boy friend, she might phone that other girl in advance and say she's sorry that they won't be able to see each other that evening.

If that fails to work, she should speak out boldly and frankly. There are times when silence doesn't pay.

To me, it's very obvious that the young lady who intrudes has never heard the old adage: "Two's company, and three's a crowd."

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

My boss is married, but has no children. His wife is an invalid and lives in a distant state. He is 15 years older than I am.

My problem is that the boss sometimes insists on my having lunch or dinner with him, at a quiet restaurant or night club. I have been doing this, because I am afraid that it would endanger my job if I didn't go, and I have to support myself, as my parents are dead.

So far, we have just had a jolly time together, neither of us taking the situation seriously. Shall I continue to go out with him, look for another job, or what?

SALLY.

DEAR SALLY:

Every angle of the Girl and Boss situation was discussed in this column some months ago, and I think it was pretty generally agreed, from scores of letters which came from all over the country, that a man who would fire a girl because she declined to have lunch or dinner with him was an unmitigated cad.

No capable girl would put up with such high-handed tactics as "eat with me or be fired."

If these luncheons and dinners are just casual affairs, which, as you tell me, are not taken seriously by either party, well and good. You are old enough to exercise proper judgment.

BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

When I became engaged to a girl of 18, there was the question of a woman of 36, with whom I had been going for four years, to be considered.

The younger girl gave me four chances to break up with the older woman, but somehow I couldn't do it. Then the girl of 18 broke with me. She didn't understand how 36 could have such a hold over 22.

The older woman goes to dances, and the one of 18 doesn't know how to dance, and stays at home. I want to marry the girl of 18, but do not seem to be able to break with the one of 36.

R.

DEAR FRIEND:

These entanglements, between a young boy and a woman almost old enough to be his mother, are very hard to break. The best thing to do is to quit, absolutely.

These rash young men — so often their fate is that of the fly and the fly paper.

BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

When I came here to work, I found a room with some married acquaintances of my parents.

The husband has now begun to annoy me and tries to kiss me when no one is looking.

What should I do?

Shall I tell his wife?

NINETEEN

MY DEAR:

No, I wouldn't advise you to make a scene by reporting this matter to the man's wife.

Look around and find another room as soon as you can.

But be careful in choosing a new home.

Ask your girl friends to help you, and do not go to a home you know nothing about. Good luck to you.

BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

Learn to Dress Smartly

LOOK LOVELY ON SMALL BUDGET

SUE has a small budget and a grand time. She never turns down an invitation because she has "nothing to wear." She plans all her wardrobe at one time, looks smart the summer long.

To avoid buying a lot of accessories, Sue keys her clothes to one basic color each season.

Navy's smart for early spring and looks cool, too, with midsummer pastels. So she chose handbag, gabardine pumps and baku hat, tailored, but wide enough for a touch of formality—all in navy.

For business, movies, weekends she selected a cadet blue printed jacket dress. Or she might have chosen a royal blue, carnelian, ginger, rose or green dress. Any of these colors goes well with navy.

For daytime best she got a three-piece outfit of navy, yellow and white printed pique. With pleated shorts under a wraparound skirt, it's ready for active sports, too.

Her coat is a topper, white or navy, that she wears with all her dresses, even her lace evening dress.

A crownless turban and washable gloves are her only white accents. She shuns white shoes and bags. They swell her budget and do little towards chic for her wardrobe.

MARRIED COMRADES -:- -:- -:- -:- By Adele Garrison

CHAPTER 834

"YOU'RE right," she said. "I am afraid to face Hal, afraid not only of his persuasiveness, but of the treacherous weakness inside my own heart.

"I cannot help remembering," she went on, "that Hal was the first man I ever loved, and that he loved me, too.

"It was such a beautiful thing, that unspoken understanding of ours, so terribly shattered by the plotting and scheming of Lucia Havens.

"But we were caught in that plot, and separated, and later, when that terrible wound had healed, Jack came into my life. And you, better than anyone else, know what Jack meant to me in those early days."

"Yes, dear girl," I whispered. "I not only know that, but I also know how bravely and truly you have done your part all these years. That is why I am anxious that you should make no error now.

MADGE ADVISES HER

"If you still love Jack so much that not even his possible faithlessness matters, then you are right in banishing Hal from your life—perhaps right in refusing to see him, although I personally do not think so. To my mind his years of devotion merit a dismissal from your own lips, not a cold message sent to him by someone else.

"On the other hand, if, as I suspect, it is your heart that is championing Hal's cause, and your conscience that of your husband, I do not think you should decide anything until you have proof positive of Jack's loyalty or disloyalty. Put Hal Meredith off, but do not decide against him finally until you, yourself, know where you stand."

She was silent again, her head averted, her figure rigid, the only sign of understanding the fingers which quivered and clung tensely to mine. And when at last she spoke it was with the voice of a woman utterly spent.

"Was ever a woman so torn as I?" she said with a hopeless mournfulness that brought a lump to my throat.

"I cannot answer for Hal," I said, "but I think I shall be able to persuade him. But you know as well as I you ought to promise to give him a chance to see you in the fall?"

"Don't ask me to promise that now," she said impassionately. "Can't you see how hard it is not to make that promise?"

"Yes, I can, my dear," I told her, "and I won't trouble you any more about it. I promise you now, upon my honor, that I will not give Hal the slightest clue to your whereabouts, and I will try to persuade him to give up his search for you until the summer is over at least."

SHOPPING WITH PRISCILLA PRICE

Dearest Anne:

These lovely, warm, sunshiny June days are enough to make any woman want to spend, and spend, and spend on exciting flattering new things. There's nothing as good for the morale as the knowledge that you really look your very best! And with clothes, permanents, hats and shoes so modestly priced there's every reason why you should feel and look like a million this summer. If you feel sort of low—just see what a new permanent, hat, dress or shoes can do for you! Here's news of different new shoes that you'll adore—

White "Anklettes" At Dunn's, $2.15

You won't blame me for getting excited, when you see these simply stunning "Anklettes," in White Kid, at Dunn's, for only $2.15. Something New in Hat Boxes—Besides Hats

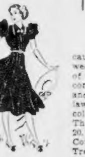
It's the brightest idea in ages! Cellophane Hat Boxes! If a Cellophane Hat Box didn't do a thing more than protect your white and pastel hats from dust—for the mere sum of 50c—you'd call it a "priceless possession." But—a Cellophane Hat Box does a great deal more—it saves you from tugging and straining to get a Hat Box off the shelf to discover if it contains the particular hat you want to wear. You can see your hat right through this Cellophane Hat Box! You'll like the gay plaid and solid color edges! They come in full hat sizes—and you can buy them separately or in a nest of three. This is the first time Filene's have had Cellophane Hat Boxes for less than $1—in fact they had to go way out west to get this particular Cellophane Hat Box to sell for 50c. See them in Filene's Gadget Shop, street floor. You may order by mail—or phone HUBbard 4250 till 9 P. M.

White As Frost—Cool As Cape Cod—Fabric Gloves, 66c

Jordan's are selling rafts of these gloves—and no wonder! It's a summertime Special that would be hard to beat. I've sketched only three styles from many. Some are markdowns from Jordan's own stock in colors. They're all brand new styles you'll adore. I especially loved the eight-button length gloves of Bemberg—and the Hand Filet cotton gloves made by peasants of Italy into a style of saucy knots. Sketched also is the coolest Bemberg glove with pleated side frill that looks SO dainty, feminine and smart. You'll say you've never seen gloves like these for 66c. That's how exciting this glove special is! See them in the Jordan Marsh Company Glove Shop, street floor—Main store.

These "Gone With the Wind" 16-Gore

Swing-Skirt Dresses, $1.98



caused a small riot at Ronna Lee's last week! They sold out—but a new shipment of them just arrived. These darling dresses come in Dotted Swiss, in Navy, lighter Blue and Beetroot backgrounds; in cool printed lawns, and in lovely Floral Prints! Specify color backgrounds if ordering by mail. They're guaranteed washable! Sizes 12 to 20. See them and hundreds of other adorable Cotton Dresses at RONNA LEE'S at 165 Tremont Street. (Right next door to Wilbar's.)

You Need Doveskin Oil

If your skin is inclined to be dry—with tiny lines and wrinkles putting in their unwelcome appearance. Doveskin Oil is compounded of highly beneficial oils and skin sterols and it's irradiated with Sunshine Vitamin D. It penetrates through the skin and revitalizes the ageing, withering cells beneath, where the real work of skin-rejuvenation is carried on. Vita Ray's Doveskin Oil really helps the skin to grow young! It brings immediate relief to dry skin, and with constant use, smooths out lines and wrinkles after a short time! Vita Ray Doveskin Oil is $1.50 a bottle, in the Walnut Room, Street Floor, R. H. White Co. Mail Orders.

Kool-Fit Girdles, $1 All-In-One, $2

The young things are mad about these airy cool summer Girdles and All-In-One Corsettes, by Bestform! They're so light, you'd never know you had them on. And, they're so cleverly woven in Eyelet Mesh, that they have marvelous control. You'd never think such wisps of garments could achieve such slim-waisted symmetry. They come in Peach and White, in sizes small, medium and large, at the BELL SHOPS, 449 Washington Street, Boston, Mass. Mail Orders.

Your Superfluous Hair Problems

are over forever—not just temporarily — if you visit Miss Roche! She knows the secret of removing superfluous hair so that it can never return — that is, by sealing each tiny cell after the hair has been removed. Miss Roche's fame has spread far and wide — even to Canada—and her Multiple Needle Treatments cost no more, though they take less time, than ordinary single needle treatments. Physicians' references. COURT GRANTS REVIEW FOR CODMAN PAIR

By granting of a petition for writ of error today, the Supreme Court will hear, Friday, a review of the case against William J. Driscoll and Thomas J. Flanagan, officers of the Codman Hill Construction Company.

Both men were fined $500 each and given indefinite jail sentences for contempt of court for failure to produce the company's books in connection with the finance commissioner's probe of the company's dealings with the city.

Judge Harold P. Williams of Superior Court had granted a stay of jail commitments until Friday to allow counsel for the defendants to file the petition which was granted by Supreme Court Judge Edward P. Pierce today.

In his petition, defense counsel set forth that Judge Williams committed 11 errors of law, claiming that the plaintiff must first show that the records were the possession of the defendant.

Defense counsel also claimed that Driscoll, president of the company, was improperly subpoened since he was subpoened under a statute dealing with the powers of the finance commission which was repealed in 1908.

Driscoll and Flanagan, the latter the company bookkeeper, claimed the books were stolen. Judge Williams characterized their claim as a mere subterfuge.

8 LOSE LIVES ON WEEK-END

Eight persons met sudden death in New England over the week-end.

Drowning victims were: Dexter D. Handley, 17, St. Albans, Vt., high school senior, drowned while swimming at Eden, Vt.; Bruno Cosinino, 15, of Newton, drowned swimming at Brookfield; Kenwood Field, 13, of Malden, drowned in Dudley pond in Cochituate; John Stone, Spanish-American War veteran, drowned in Suncook pond, Barnstead, N. H.

Arthur D. Bagley, 63, of Schenectady, N. Y., was killed in Freeport, Me., when his car overturned.

Beatrice Robinson, 21, of Portsmouth, N. H., lost her life when her automobile struck a tree in Kittery, Me.

Allan H. Brodie, 26, of Old Greenwich, Conn., died of injuries suffered in an automobile accident in Greenwich.

ECONOMY MOVE BY ROOSEVELT

Washington, June 21 (AP)—Government department heads have received instructions from President Roosevelt to arrange for reduced expenditures in the 1939 fiscal year.

Work on the budget for the year has begun. Department heads are to submit figures to the budget bureau by September 15.

Daniel W. Bell, acting budget director, advised the departments that the President instructed "every possible effort should be made to bring the amount of each item below the corresponding amount in the fiscal year 1938."

Treasury estimates forecast a deficit in 1938 of $418,000,000. Officials would not estimate 1939 revenues, but said if government income continued to increase and expenditures were reduced, there should be a surplus in 1939.

Arrest 4 Waltham Youths in Attack

Four Waltham youths, charged with assault with intent to rob, were arrested at their homes today after Joseph Hanna, of Harrison street, Maynard, reported they beat him severely.

Hanna told the police the youths picked him up and offered to ride him home in their car. They stopped at the Wayside Inn, Sudbury, he said, and proceeded to beat him.

Their attempt to rob him, he alleged, was halted when they were frightened by approaching motorists.

The youths are John J. Walsh, 22, of Cushing street, John D. Babcock, 23, of Taylor street, Armand F. Ferro, 25, Rear Newton street, and Aloysisus J. Delory, 22, of Taylor street, all of Waltham.

6 Strikers Slain

Port of Spain, Trinidad, June 21 (INS)—Six strikers were shot dead today when they attempted to hold up a police car in the Fyzabad oil district, where martial law has been declared.

RUNAWAY TELLS OF ADVENTURES

Edward C. Mader, 5, of 101 Brooks, avenue, Roxbury, made a lot of new friends, Sunday, and saw the big boats with the red flags as he crossed Neponset bridge, on a hike that lasted 15 hours from his Roxbury home to Quincy square. His mother and Special Officer John F. Bartel of Dudley street station listen to the story of his wanderings.

FIND LOST BOY ON 6-MILE HIKE

While his distracted parents were keeping an all-night vigil and police cruising cars were searching for five-year-old Edward C. Mader today, it turned out that Edward was sleeping soundly at Quincy police headquarters.

The little boy had wandered all the way from St. Paul's Church in Roxbury to Quincy square—a six-mile walk, but just a jaunt for Edward.

"I wasn't tired until it got dark," he explained. "I wasn't hungry either. I wanted some ice cream. The policemen were very nice. They got me some ice cream."

Edward started walking while his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Mader, of Brook avenue, Roxbury, were attending mass.

"I met some boys on the way," he told Special Officer John F. Bartel of Roxbury. "I walked a while with them. Then I walked alone. I crossed a bridge and saw some boats with flags on them. I kept walking. There were lots of things to see."

Trolley Bandits Get $12,000 Cash

Richmond, Va., June 21 (AP)—Four robbers held up a street car motorman and two Virginia Electric Power Company cashiers shortly before noon today, in the west end section of the city, and escaped with $12,806, the company reported.

FIND HUSBAND DEAD AS WIFE SPURNS AID

In the bedroom of an elderly Lynn couple, an agent of the State Old Age Assistance Division again urged that the 78-year-old woman and her 71-year-old husband, both of whom had been ill for days, consent to go to a home for better treatment.

Once more the woman weakly refused, as she lay in bed. She declared as she had repeatedly done before, that she and her husband were too proud.

But the husband wasn't proud any more. He was dead in the other bed in the room and had been dead for some hours, unknown to his white-haired wife.

The woman is Mrs. Annie J. Adams of Wyman street. The man was Henry E. Adams, whose age and illness forced him to discontinue work some time ago. The couple had been receiving old age assistance for a number of months.

Periodic visits have been made to the house by Patrick Skally, agent for the Old Age Assistance division.

Today when he visited the house, he believed, and Mrs. Adams believed, that the elderly man was sleeping.

When Skally discovered that Adams, instead, was cold in death, he notified his office, the police and the medical examiner.

Meanwhile police are attempting to locate relatives of the couple, if there are any.

THIS IS LIFE

By

Robert E. Rogers

Now that summer is officially here today, [illegible]ke to say that I can't remember when I [illegible] spring more. A mild and bland winter edged imperceptibly into a cool and pleasant spring. Never have the trees seemed greener and more luxuriant in their early foliage. My big horse chestnut and the great copper beech next door were never more magnificent, and in spite of rumors that the Dutch elm tree blight is spreading, we still seem to be free from it in these parts.

ROBERT E. ROGERS

And we stayed in town long enough to enjoy the rhododendrons and the glossy-leaved domesticated mountain laurel around the front of the house [illegible] I can ever remember. Rhododendron [illegible] Commencement blooming. [illegible] were gorgeous, but [illegible] away as soon as they appeared [illegible] long enough to enjoy them [illegible] had to be dug up [illegible] John said they were [illegible] rest in the [illegible] I [illegible] loved spring blooms [illegible].

Moist Sea Air Good For the Early Roses

I [illegible] bushes and flowers didn't [illegible] and wither so early. Crocus and daffodils (or jonquils)—I can't tell the difference and I am not sure there is any—lilacs and [illegible] blossom. They are [illegible] such a little while. But [illegible] up for fair with the early roses. The [illegible] air seems to do something nice [illegible] now that the town garden, such as [illegible] the sea-side bushes, the wild roses by the stone wall and the pink and red ramblers over the door, will last for pretty nearly a month yet.

No perennials! The winter is not good for them and we have to start fresh with seedlings every summer. And we start so late that June and early July is pretty barren and meagre [illegible] the iris and the fall orange [illegible] August and all through September [illegible] storm to beat upon them and turn them black, they can be pretty gorgeous.

Yes, all in all, it has been a pretty nice spring and I can stand a good hot July with pleasure.

Sea Coast Weather Has Record of Tricks

I am writing this in the empty house at Cambridge. Not until it is printed on Monday will it be officially summer and my city clothes will be put away in mothballs and I can go hatless and sockless, in striped jersey and slacks, [illegible] to do my writing chores at a table out of doors under a bush, with the sun on my neck and arms and the sea in my eyes and ears—and very comfortable, thank you.

At least, I have an abiding faith that on the first day of summer the cool grayness of spring will disappear and there will be sun. I have this faith every year. Sometimes I am fooled. The sea-coast of Massachusetts can be tricky. The Old Farmer's Almanac tells us of the year without a summer—over a hundred years ago, it was—when the potatoes froze in the ground. But we can always remember the year without a winter which we have just [illegible] through and which was pretty nice.

[illegible] been so bad packing up to get [illegible]. Perhaps the mothballs were worst. I [illegible] we owned a cedar closet, one of those [illegible] rooms, close and aromatic, where you could put everything away and turn the key and leave it all safely behind you till the first crisp fall days. But lacking that, there have—I suppose—to be mothballs and moth-flakes and cedar chests and these new upright cardboard contraptions that are pretty good substitutes.

Wendy Leads Alert, But Timid Career

But Wendy has been going around watering at the eyes and sneezing her little dog's heart out whenever she gets a particularly [illegible] whiff. She always wants to see what [illegible] every box and chest and so she investigates. But it doesn't last. Her curiosity [illegible]ckly satisfied and she retires under a bed with a disgusted air, her presence only occasionally revealed by a strangled cough or a canine herrashoo which seems to say that she would prefer the moths.

If it isn't one thing it's another.

ANN MARSTERS In Hollywood • A NEW SERIES

Leonard In Films 30 Years

Director Once Bit Player

Few motion picture men, or women, have been in Hollywood as long as Robert Z. Leonard, husky, round-faced director who once starred in westerns. Three decades mark his tenure in the film capital, which he first knew as a cross-roads hamlet on the rim of sleepy farms and orange groves. While she was last in Hollywood, Ann Marsters, now back in Boston, secured from Leonard one of the most interesting interviews in her Ann Marsters in Hollywood series appearing in the Boston Evening American and Sunday Advertiser.

By ANN MARSTERS
Boston Evening American Staff Correspondent

CHAPTER 29

Hollywood, Cal.

This is to be the reminiscing of Robert Z. Leonard, the great Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer director.

He is a big man—over six feet tall—with red hair and intelligent blue eyes. You will recall him best, perhaps, as the director of "The Great Ziegfeld." At present, he has just finished directing Jeanette MacDonald in "The Firefly."

In service, he is the oldest director in Hollywood, and until 1917, when he first became a director he was an important movie star himself for several years. He has "grown up" with motion pictures, and through the years he has acquired a treasure-chest of memories.

RECALLS SCREEN HISTORY

On the set of "The Firefly" he found the time to dip into his memory and pull out a few special plums for us.

"Sometimes," he began, "we have to go back into our past to catch up with our present. Anyway, that was the case with me when I was assigned to direct 'The Great Ziegfeld.'

"It was 31 years ago that I saw my first Ziegfeld show. What's more, I was in it. Anna Held had come to my home town, Denver, Colo., in 'Little Duchess,' and with all the enthusiasm of my 16 years, I was ready to carry a spear, a trunk, or a backdrop in order to see her.

NEVER SAW FUTURE

"Everything is comparative. But if anyone had told me then that the glorified girls, the beauty, the costumes, the dancing, the whole dazzling spectacle of a Ziegfeld show would some day be brought to the screen, I would not, of course, have believed my ears."

Leonard hadn't, at that time, even seen a motion picture. He saw his first one in its crudest form, with Douglas Fairbanks during his high school days.

Fairbanks came to town in a stock company, and he and Leonard got to know each other.

"At a place called Elitch's Gardens," said Leonard, "there was a little peep-show where, for five cents, the astonished beholder could see a horse and wagon, then a street car running along, with the conductor hopping down when it stopped and helping off a large woman with a still larger plume in her hat."

Fairbanks had grinned at Leonard and said:

"Wouldn't it be funny if some day actors did this sort of stunt? But of course—they never will."

HOLLYWOOD IN 1907

"It was just a stretch of farms and orange groves," he said. "Hollywood was like a sleepy suburb, and it certainly gave no sign of ever waking up to find itself world-famous.

"There were no studios; just meeting-places for actors, who would be carted off somewhere into the country to make Westerns. I became an actor myself—for $7.50 a day."

Leonard saw the boots and saddles gradually give way to the more elaborate fixings of drawing-room drama. And the words "movie star" were soon to be born.

"In 1913," Leonard continued, "Charlie Chaplin was emerging from the obscurity of a slapstick comedian. And in 1914 he made his first full-length picture appearance. The billing announced: 'Marie Dresser in Tillie's Punctured Romance, with Charles Chaplin.'

MARY PICKFORD BEGINNING

"And in New York, D. W. Griffith had hired a girl who was known as Gladys Smith—until she changed her name to Mary Pickford. He paid her $5 a day. And on one of those days, her two friends, Lillian and Dorothy Gish, came to visit her. Griffith straightway bundled them into the picture as extras."

Certainly there was no lack of star material then, although Hollywood didn't realize it. It didn't realize, for one thing, that Mack Sennett had a bathing beauty who would one day rise to fame as Gloria Swanson.

Among that same group of "bathing beauties" were Mabel Normand, Phyllis Haver and Louise Fazenda.

"And then," said Leonard, "money came to Hollywood. Actors became stars, and their salaries touched and passed the $1000 a week mark. Hollywood grew rich—and it spent like a sailor on shore leave.

HOUSES AND LIMOUSINES

"The stars built their homes and their swimming pools—and gave their parties. And elegant limousines went rolling all over the place.

"Around 1918, it was a great event to be invited to the home of Fanny Ward. Her dinners were famous—served on solid gold plate."

"Gold PLATE, my dear," Fanny corrected her, smiling sweetly, "do have some spinach."

When [illegible] Powell [illegible] Hollywood first [illegible] he was astonished at the seemingly endless stream of [illegible]. And when an actress inquired if he were working the next day, he replied:

"I'd hoped to be, but I'm afraid I won't get through dinner in time."

HOLLYWOOD CALMS DOWN

Hollywood calmed down a little after it became more used to its sudden wealth—and the studios progressed and expanded. They were constantly searching for new talent—but then, as now, it took Hollywood quite a while to recognize the talent which was right at its elbow.

"Greta Garbo," said Leonard, "was unwanted even at $35 a week when she was brought to America. Joan Crawford went unnoticed in a throng of extras. Myrna Loy vainly sought work as an extra at the same studio which now is proud to call her one of its most brilliant stars."

But during all this time the career of Robert Z. Leonard was marching firmly ahead. He had directed an imposing number of early successes, including Mae Murray (his former wife by the way) in "Peacock Alley," "The French Doll," and "Mademoiselle Modiste."

Several years later he directed Norma Shearer in "The Divorcee," "Let Us Be Gay," and "Strange Interlude."

DIRECTED MARION DAVIES

He directed Marion Davies in "Her Cardboard Lover," and during the making of that picture a young man walked up to him and said:

"Mr. Leonard, if you should ever have a little part for me, I'd be very grateful." It was Clark Gable.

But Leonard's favorite story (with which he concluded his reminiscing) is about a day in 1924 when he was asked to make a test of a girl from Europe.

"When I went to the set," he said, "I looked about—and there, shrinking and trembling, stood a hapless creature, her hair lankly drooping, her face an impenetrable mask. She had, it seems, done something in a small way in German pictures. This much I learned from a man with her. She herself spoke no English—indeed, she was mute. An assistant said she was Greta Garbo.

"By all that was American, which the newcomer certainly did not suggest, she had been dressed by the wardrobe woman in knee-length skirts as a flapper. I explained to her that the flapper was then the vogue. She didn't understand. She would have to be shown—in sign language.

LEONARD GOES

"I therefore, with all the grace of my 225 pounds, proceeded to impersonate a flapper. I must have cut a ridiculous figure as I swished along in a promenade.

"Then, as I turned back, there was no Garbo! She had vanished, leaving her dubious friend to explain. He said, 'Miss Garbo did not want to appear as foolish as that.'

" 'Go and get her,' I said.

"He hurried off into a dark corner, and returned alone. He said, 'Miss Garbo is terribly frightened and wants to go home.' "

And that, ladies and gentlemen, is the original version of Garbo's famous expression, "Aye tank Aye go home."

ROBERT Z. LEONARD ANN MARSTERS

Robert Z. Leonard, directing pictures since 1917, famous for his "The Great Ziegfeld," tells Ann Marsters, Boston girl reporter, on M-G-M set of "The Firefly," how he reached his present eminent position as ace director. In point of service, Leonard is the oldest director in Hollywood. He has just completed "The Firefly" with Jeanette MacDonald, but his own story is mighty interesting, too. Miss Marsters is attired in costume she wore while appearing in an M-G-M picture.

CIO, AFL COMBINE TO HONOR CONNERY

Putting aside for the moment their differences, CIO and A. F. of L. unions united today in a drive for funds for a monument to its dead champion, Congressman William P. Connery.

At the same time it was announced Laurence Connery, brother and secretary to the Congressman, had been authorized by Washington to continue activities at the capital in behalf of the Seventh District.

ISSUES STATEMENT

Declining to state whether he would be a candidate to succeed his brother, Connery issued the following statement:

"There are many loose ends in connection with William's official duties which must be gathered up. I expect to go to Washington this week for this purpose.

"No doubt I will be there for several days carrying on as 'Billy' would wish.

"I have been authorized from Washington to continue all Congressional activities for this district until an election has been called and a successor chosen, and it is my own personal desire to be of every service to the people of this district.

"It is my intention upon my return from Washington to immediately reopen the Seventh Congressional District office in the Postoffice Building, Lynn, for the continued convenience of all of the people of this district.

"I hope that all with problems will continue to avail themselves of my services."

JAM CEMETERY

Plans for a monument at Lynn honoring the congressman were announced by Secretary William A. Nealey of the Lynn Central Labor Union, who said every labor organization in the vicinity "regardless of affiliation" would be invited to participate, as well as the national and state labor departments.

Thousands of mourners paid homage at the grave of the late congressman in St. Mary's cemetery yesterday, the crowd becoming so great special officers were detailed to direct traffic along approaching highways.

Russia 'Anti-God,' Pastor Declares

Russia is in the midst of a very [illegible] God campaign, Rev. Gardiner H. Shattuck declared in his first sermon at Trinity church since his ordination.

"In the extreme nationalist countries, the totalitarian state is beginning to take the place of God," he said. "In our own cities we face the indifference of multitudes.

"In western civilization the Christian idea of God is gradually being replaced by new objects of trust—which are, in fact, new gods.

"This spread of secularism and this rise of new gods, focuses attention upon the problem of God as never before in Christian history since the collapse of paganism in ancient days.

"The duty of the Christian is to take God more seriously, to organize life around God's, to know and love Him deeply, through Christian practice and Christian prayer."

V. F. W. ELECTS HEADS; 4-DAY MEET ENDS

Patrick S. O'Donnell of South Deerfield today was the newly [illegible] Veterans of Foreign Wars.

His election climaxed a four-day meet of the veterans at Nantasket Beach and followed the adoption of resolutions denouncing Communistic and subversive tendencies in the State of Massachusetts.

Lieutenant Governor Francis E. Kelley extended greetings of the state to the convention and presented award banners to outstanding posts. Winning posts were the Lieut. Joseph F. Wehner Post, Everett; Corp. Gorden E. Denton Post, South End, Lawrence F. McCarthy Post, Leicester, No Man's Land Post, Nantasket, and Buchner-Stickles Post, Lenox.

The convention heard an appeal for adequate national defense by Congressman John W. McCormack and received an invitation from James H. Sheeran, of the State Department of public safety, to attend the convention of the 101st Infantry Veterans Association at Woburn in September.

Commander O'Donnell appointed as his chief of staff Major James D. Weir of the Bunker Hill post. O'Donnell formerly was senior vice [illegible] Miller of Dorchester. He served with H troop of the 15th Cavalry in Cuba and the Philippines.

Harry V. O'Day was re-elected adjutant and Rev. Wallace E. Hayes began his 15th year as chaplain. Mrs. Elinor G. Delaney of Beverly was elected president of the auxiliary, succeeding Mrs. Gertrude MacDonald of Arlington.

Burglar Hunted In Jamaica Plain

Police are seeking a burglar who made two entrances at Olmstead street, Jamaica Plain, early today. The home of Alfred MacDonald was entered by a window on the first floor and his wallet stolen, with $31 in cash in it.

Virginia Rogers, 16, and her sister, Claire, 17, were awakened by the same man as he entered their home through a second floor window. Their screams frightened him away.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN

By

Ann Marsters

Jean Harlow's fans continue to ex[illegible] desire to see her last picture, [illegible]. And those who are against [illegible] are still very much in the minority.

Today we shall publish a few [illegible] prize winning [illegible] on that subject [illegible] writers [illegible].

The first is [illegible] Mary Ann Merrill, 21 Logan street, Lawrence.

ANN MARSTERS

"I think the showing of Jean Harlow's last and unfinished picture would be the perfect tribute to one who succeeded in life and will be remembered in death. It would be a fitting symbol of the affection that her public held for her.

"But let Rita Johnson, the Worcester girl complete the remaining scenes, as M. G. M. officials have suggested. To leave the picture unfinished might give us a sense of failure and frustration rather than of fulfillment a[nd] success. All things must have an end, a[nd] the end is but another beginning. Death [is] such an end—and a beginning.

• • •

Would Be Opportunity To Say Last Goodbye

"To see Jean Harlow once again will give us an opportunity to watch her artistry with the appreciation that comes only with the realization that it will never be seen again, and to say good-bye to one whom we admired and loved.

"Very truly yours,
"Mary Ann Merrill."

• • •

Mrs. James Cunningham Bingham, [illegible] Roberts road, West Medford, objects to the plan of having someone else complete Jean's picture. She writes:

"Let there be no pitiful break in Jean Harlow's last appearance. However suitably an actress went through the remaining scenes of 'Saratoga,' the illusion of the screen play would be lost. That is bad theater, and Jean, good little trouper that she was, would not like that, I think.

"Instead, I suggest that on Jean's birthday, they show a few scenes from her best pictures and a few lovely stills of her—gay and charming, as she was in life.

"Sincerely,
"Mrs. James C. Bingham."

• • •

E. A. Burns, of Lover's Leap avenue, Lynn writes:

"By all means let M. G. M. release 'Saratoga' and give the millions of loyal fans an opportunity to pay their final tribute to its star.

"Contrary to the cynic's opinion, the majority of humans have a lot of kindness and sincerity in their hearts, and, because of these two qualities, I believe there need be no fear of offense from morbid curiosity. People all over the country thought too much of her to feel anything but a deep compassion for her tragic life and a sense of loss at her death.

"Yes, let us see 'Saratoga' as Jean made it—let us feel that we said goodbye to her as she really was—laughing, lovely, and unforgettable.

"E. A. Burns."

Poets of New School Invited to Write

There is a group of poets for which we have long had a great admiration. We don't know whether it consists of one poet, or two poets, or a dozen—but anyway, we call it "the shaving-cream school of poetry."

You must have seen signs of this school when you've been driving along the main highways. (And you have to be pretty alert in reading the verses or you miss the last line.)

"Pity all the Mighty Caesars,
They pulled each whisker
Out with tweezers!"

Perhaps some of you, in a idle moment, might like to send me YOUR favorite verse—or you might make up one of your own, and swell the ranks of this particular school of poetry.

GRAND BEACH, MICH., JUNE 21—Having been through a mysterious, three-day grouch, with hideaway sulks and glowering silence, Jimmy Braddock suddenly recovered his cordial good nature during mid-morning on the sweltering Sabbath.

AUSTEN LAKE

Late Saturday night he had decided to halt heavy training. He cancelled the Sunday sparring exhibition, saying he was in his physical prime and feared staleness. His nerves were frazzled by the monotonies of eight weeks in his scrub-jungle. His insides were acidy and his mood temperish.

Achilles sulked in his tent.

Yes, Sunday afternoon Braddock turned up the sunshine of his smile, cracked [illegible] jokes with his punching partners and took new interest in the roughhouse fun in the hallways.

There was a real reason for his return to good nature. During the morning a physician named Otto Meyer had arrived from New York, the doctor who had treated Braddock for shriveling of the leg arteries (phlebitis) last December, when an arthritic condition threatened to ruin his career.

The doctor, a florid, thickset man with a Teutonic tinge of tongue, thumped Jimmy all over, finding him hale and fit. The poisons of last winter, said the doctor, had disappeared.

* * *

"SOUND, LIGE A VALNUT"

IT WAS A CURIOUS CLINIC [illegible] rubbing room. A new man [illegible] [illegible] the only unofficial [illegible] [illegible] Trainer "Doc" Robb [illegible] Braddock [illegible] specialist.

Jimmy [illegible] on the [illegible] and [illegible] kneaded the muscular centres, saying [illegible]

"Yeh," said Braddock, "I hit the roof when you did that last winter."

The physician said "yah" and went on with his finger-stabbings, finally taking Braddock's hands and spreading the knuckles with tentative wrenchings. Jimmy's face remained placid.

"No pain," he said, replying to the doctor's eyebrow inquiry.

Finally the specialist spoke, "I am avraid," he said, whimsically, "Dot you are sound, yah, lige a valnut."

* * *

MISGIVINGS WIPED AWAY

SO TODAY JIMMY is happy again. His week-end misgivings that his arthritic condition and blood stagnation in his leg veins was returning, had been erased. Nothing to worry about till tomorrow.

He had completed his miles of morning road work faithfully, had exchanged wallops with his spar-mates, thumped the big sandbag and boxed his shadow nearly eight weeks of it.

And then, suddenly, on Thursday, a spiritual curdling set in so that he gnawed the lining of his lips and became peevish at trivial things.

Friday, at the top of this blue funk, he had telephoned Dr Meyer, asking him to hurry immediately to camp. He wanted a last examination, said Jimmy, and the reassurance that his internal acid feelings and the galloping grumps were not caused by sudden back-firing of congested veins.

"Sound lige a valnut," the doctor had said, diagnosing his "edgy" condition as nerve spasms natural among fighters in the final stages of training.

So Jimmy's misgiving were wiped away, and when the bulk of the journalists arrived belatedly on Sunday they found him buoyant, normal and happy.

"I heard you were sour," said Dan Parker, of the New York Mirror, with obvious disappointment at having his man-bites-dog story disrupted.

BRADDOCK OUTLINES PLANS

BRADDOCK OUTLINED his plan of attack for tomorrow night with the unruffled calm of a surgeon selecting his instruments for a familiar operation.

He said he hoped to land a solid punch to Louis' head in the first round. He thought if he could sting the Negro early it might induce the same mental uproar and bewilderment which had occurred when Schmeling jolted him last year.

He thought that the secret of beating Louis lay largely in making the youth disrupt his habitual fighting groove and force him to break up his familiar routine. He thought Louis was easily fooled by feinting.

But Braddock is measuring Louis largely as he appeared on that badly befuddled night with Schmeling, when the Negro was suffering a combination of wife-trouble, inflated-ego and poor training.

So that he had stood off in a brown study with his left hand drooped and letting Schmeling carry the attack, instead of crowding and pursuing, flicking his gloves in quick angular stabs and never giving his man opportunity to take a toe hold and throw a haymaker.

SHOULD FORCE THE FIGHT

TOMORROW NIGHT, if Louis is his normal self, he will crowd Braddock and begin that sinister pursuit, step-by-step, as he walks his victim backward around the ring.

I feel that Jimmy's best chance is to stand in at the beginning and force the fight. The only fighter who has beaten Louis was a man who stood in staunchly and dared to throw his punches. All the others have lapsed into a slow, backtracking until suddenly lightning struck, and they wound up on the back of their necks.

One must concede Braddock a reasonable chance and hope that he upsets the dope jug. But on youth, form, and previous record, Louis deserves to be at least a 3 to 1 favorite. In fact there is very little Braddock money in Chicago at that figure.

STRANGE FIGHT, SAYS GOODMAN

(Copyright 1937 by Universal Service)

Chicago, June 21—The fight between Joe Louis and James J. Braddock in Comiskey Park next Tuesday evening may well go down in fistic history as "the battle of conflicting reports."

There is no picking this heavyweight championship bout on the basis of form.

Reports from the respective fight camps have been so contradictory that they are practically meaningless and have tended only to shorten the odds between the "underdog" champion and his coffee-colored challenger.

This is perhaps the strangest of all heavyweight championship fights in the history of boxing. Rarely, if ever, does a champion enter the ring the short-ender in the betting; and never before has betting been as small as it has for this seemingly unpredictable bout.

Here are two fighters—one only 23 and supposedly at the peak of his career; the other 33, inactive for two full years and a so-called "has-been."

Because he waited two years and risked losing his title via the legal strata, Jim Braddock will receive the biggest reward financially since Gene Tunney.

[illegible] is to get 50 per cent of the gate, which should at least do [illegible] and to a man who only a few short years ago was working on the Jersey docks and living on relief that's not exactly putty.

GUESSING CONTEST

On his record, Joe Louis should make short work of Braddock. But the record has [illegible] before in Braddock's case and the "wise money" is reluctant to take any more chances.

Louis would have been a 15 to 1 [illegible] over Braddock before his fatal match with Max Schmeling. Today he looms to better than a 13 to 5 favorite and the possibilities are that they may enter the ring at close to even money in the wagering.

There has been a great deal of talk about Louis [illegible] the "w[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] his fame is [illegible]

There has been [illegible] about Louis' [illegible] showings in his training sessions and ever more about how great Braddock [illegible] but few of the experts who have seen them both have been able to reach a [illegible] form opinion.

[illegible] the fact [illegible] is as good as another and yet when asked to pick the winner the majority of the experts the same [illegible] as being [illegible] nominate Louis as the next heavyweight champion of the world.

This writer must confess naming Louis as his choice, and what's more, by a knockout.

FIRST PUNCH FIGHT

If he wins Louis will be the second colored heavyweight champion of the world. Jack Johnson who thinks little of Louis' chances to gain the crown, was the other.

Hazarding a guess as to how this fight will be fought is dangerous. Some say that Braddock will be the aggressor. Louis' camp reveals that the Detroit brown Bomber will shift to the offensive after gaining fame as a counter-puncher.

Of two things, however, there is no doubt. The one who lands the first real punch will win this fight. And both fighters, despite reports, will enter the ring in the best possible physical condition.

As far as their mental set-ups tomorrow night, they are unpredictable. Outwardly, both Louis and Braddock are confident and nonchalant.

Braddock to the very last has predicted that he will win by a knockout within eight rounds.

Louis, who has been able to come amazingly close to naming the round in which he will finish an opponent, refused to make any definite prediction. He says:

"All I know is that I will win. I will win by a knockout but I cannot say when the finish will come. I'm going out there and try to finish him as fast as possible."

Right and Left—One May Be Right, the Other Wrong

BOR Choice Over CALLAHAN

Nat Bor rules a 10 to 8 favorite to beat Handy Andy Callahan of Lawrence in the featured 10-round bout of Eddie Mack's first open air show tomorrow night at National League Park.

While Callahan has the edge in experience Bor is expected to prove too stiff a puncher for the flash of ring lightning from Lawrence.

Bor's record is spotted with K O triumphs. In 46 professional fights he's won 33 of them by kayoes.

While they may crown a new heavyweight champion in Chicago [illegible] night they may likewise [illegible] the next welter champ of the world at Bob Quinn's ball park.

Bor will challenge Barney Ross for the title if he knocks out Callahan and there's a chance the [illegible] might be staged by Mack in Boston. His offer to Ross has been favorably accepted and final decision is awaited.

Von Cramm Victor In Wimbledon Tilt

Wimbledon, Eng., June 21 (AP)—A burning sun and a light breeze, today ushered in the opening program of the all-England tennis championships which will come to an end a fortnight hence.

Sixty-four men's singles matches were to be played [illegible] before dark. According to custom the English champion, Henry Wilfred (Bunny) Austin, was given the honor of serving the first ball against G. Lyttleton Rogers, giant Irish Davis cup player, in the opening match on the center court.

Grant rose from a sick bed only this morning but was expected to play his opening match this afternoon against the Englishman J M Hunt.

The tall Briton, J. F G. Lysaght supplied unexpected fireworks on the No. 1 court by taking the first set 6—3 from Baron Gottfried von Cramm of Germany, seeded No 4.

The American to advance was Wayne Sabin, Hollywood, Calif youngster, who disposed of R. J. Ritchie of Great Britain 6—1, 6—3, 6—4. Frankie Parker of [illegible] [illegible]

Von Cramm, however, pulled himself together to eliminate Lysaght 3—6, 6—1, 6—2, 6—0. Hal Surface of Kansas City survived his first match with S. Matterson of Sweden 6—0, 6—2, 6—1.

Rogers likewise startled the center court gallery by taking the first set from Austin [illegible] [illegible] to change shoes after the set was over.

Gene Mako [illegible] Los Angeles [illegible] surface in the second round with a four-set triumph over Jacques Jamain of France 6—4, 5—7, 6—3, 6—3. [illegible]

[illegible] young South African [illegible] [illegible] to defeat 6—4, 2—6, 7—5, 6—4.

Retain Tip-Off In Court Game

Akron, O., June 21 (AP)—Claiming that elimination of the center jump in basketball would revolutionize the game to such an extent that it will be a foot race, the board of directors of the Midwest Basketball Conference voted yesterday to retain the tip-off for all league play next winter.

Liberalized officiating with a minimum [illegible] whistle tooting, however, again will be in effect.

Strong American Entry in Golf Open

Carnoustie, Scotland, June 21 (AP)—The strongest American challenge in the history of the open golf championship—including 18 professional and six amateurs—was listed for the draw today for the playing July 5 to July 9. The total entry of 268, including 40 overseas players, however, was the smallest since 1932.

The Americans include the eleven members of the Ryder Cup team as well as Charles Sweeny, Tommy Armour, MacDonald Smith and [illegible] Montague, Hollywood amateur.

The Cards took the opener, 6 to 2. It was Dean's 10th win of the season.

The double defeat pushed the Bees down into a last place tie with the Cincinnati Reds.

Dizzy restricted the Bees to five hits, a homer by Al Lopez accounting for the lone Boston marker.

Homers by Joe Medwick, his 15th of the season, and Don Gutteridge, each with one on, featured a 14-hit St. Louis attack on three Bee pitchers. Frank Gabler, new Bee pitcher, was shelled from the box.

In the curtain raiser Lon Warneke turned in a four-hitter to chalk up his eighth win. Gene Moore homered for the Bees and Johnny Mize clouted his [illegible] four-bagger for the Cards.

Eighth Round, Says Champ

Chicago, June 21 (AP)—Heavyweight Champion James J. Braddock, on the eve of his title battle tomorrow night with Joe Louis said today "I will retain my title by a knockout within eight rounds."

"Joe Louis is a great fighter and a worthy opponent," the titleholder said, "and I expect one of the hardest fights of my career. I am confident, however, that I will be heavyweight champion after tomorrow night. I have never been afraid of any fighter I have ever faced and certainly Louis holds no terror for me."

Rainbow Beaten By Ranger

Newport, R. I., June 21—Harold S. Vanderbilt's Ranger loomed today as a sure choice to win the berth of America's Cup defender in the racing with T. O. M. Sopwith's Endeavour I or II which opens here July 31.

Ranger, undefeated in its tests with Yankee and Rainbow, defeated the latter by 11 minutes and five seconds in the opening race of the second series of trials. It was Ranger's sixth straight victory. The course was a 26.3 mile triangle.

Experts are agreed that the new $500,000 yacht is much faster since it acquired its new mast and rigging which were lacking in the first trial series.

JOE PREDICTS VICTORY

Kenosha, Wis., June 21 (AP)—The experts aren't satisfied that Joe Louis is ready for James J. Braddock but Joe Louis is.

As he loafed around his Lakeside villa waiting for the hour he is to get his chance at the heavyweight title, the Brown Bomber and his handlers confessed nothing but supreme confidence of victory today despite a series of almost pitiful exhibitions during training.

"I am ready and I am going to be the next heavyweight champion," said Louis. "No one ever won a fight while practicing."

"You'll see a better Joe Louis than ever before," said Trainer Jack Blackburn. "Joe will fight his old fight and have a better defense to boot."

Blackburn and his camp associates refused to get alarmed over Louis' dismal showing in his final workout yesterday when Tiger Hairston, Negro sparmate from Wheeling, W. Va., had the Brown Bomber groggy and bewildered as he hammered him with looping rights to the face. Blackburn halted the attack by ordering time called before the round was completed. He blamed Louis' poor tactics on the rain that made the ring canvas slippery.

PREDICTS VICTORY

"It was too slippery and Joe didn't want to take no chances," said Blackburn. "He's in perfect condition, feels good and will be going full guns Tuesday night."

The experts generally thought otherwise. Many who had picked Louis to win changed their minds even though they didn't think much of Braddock either. There was no question but what Hairston made the Bomber look very bad.

Except for a long walk, loafing was the order of the day for Louis as his mates packed their belongings for tomorrow's getaway. Louis planned to spend the day playing cards—He is some $54 ahead in a poker game—and reading magazines. No one was allowed to visit the palatial home which the Louis entourage rented for $500 for five weeks.

"Don't put any more in the paper what round I'm going to win in," said Louis. "I hope to win somewhere between the first and 15th round. 'Course the first would be much better."

WILSON ON TOP

DAVE WILSON

Dave Wilson is again on the scene and way out front as usual. In keeping with his consistency in leading all local handicappers, Wilson has just concluded the Suffolk meeting with 60 winners, six more than his nearest rival.

There have been two meetings to date and the score is:

Wilson two victories and no defeats.

During the past three years of New England racing, Dave has been out front every year.

This season he is going better than ever. He took top honors for winners in the 'Gansett meeting easily, and then repeated at Suffolk.

His record for big turf classics in the past two years is unequaled by any turf expert in the country. He stands alone among recognized handicappers in having named the last two winners of the Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Flamingo Stakes.

Cold figures show that Wilson has consistently produced more winners than any other handicapper in New England. Follow his Rockingham selections in the Boston Evening American every day.

MR. BOSTON

Louis by K. O. Before Tenth

Champ's Age Big Handicap

By JACK CONWAY

Mr. Boston

Chicago, Ill., June 21—I would suggest that you discount some of the press stories that have come out of Joe Louis' training camp during the past month as he has prepared for his 15-round world heavyweight championship bout with Jimmy Braddock which will be staged at Comiskey Park tomorrow night.

Mike Jacobs of the Twentieth Century Club, who is the real boss of the title contest, has had his own ballyhoo artists entrenched at the camps of both Louis and Braddock.

When the big bettors installed Louis a 4 to 1 favorite in the early stages of the training grind, it is reported that Mike made lengthy speeches about the evils of betting, and especially what a sucker one is to give 4 to 1 odds on anything.

Meanwhile from the Braddock [illegible] champ [illegible] and [illegible]

I must say that the Jacobs plan [illegible] didly. The betting odds have tightened up to 2 to [illegible] the cash customers are fighting for the privilege [illegible] their money for tickets.

The reaction of the cash customers [illegible] Mike gleeful. Jacobs, of course, is interested [illegible] as a science but if pressed he [illegible] great concern is in the box office.

LOUIS TO TRY FOR KAYO

IT ISN'T ANY secret that Louis will strive for a quick knockout in the title bout. He is smart enough to know that the longer the bout goes the less will be his chances for victory. In the event of the tussle going the distance of 15 rounds, Braddock has better than an even chance of ending up with the decision.

Personally I believe Louis will win by a knockout inside of ten rounds. It may take him four or five rounds to get inside of Braddock's defense, but I believe he will succeed in doing so, in which event he will end the show with his heavy punches.

Louis has plenty of boxing weakness [illegible]

[illegible] Max [illegible]

Louis has a jaw weakness which gives Braddock a chance of winning. If Jimmy could clip Louis early in the bout with a healthy right to the jaw, he would find it easier going.

Louis might get rattled and frightened as he did when Schmeling knocked him down. In the event of such a happening, Braddock would win much as he pleased.

Re-elected Captain

Amherst, June 21—Bennett R. [illegible] of [illegible] has been re-elected captain of the Amherst College team for next season. He is a second baseman.

Week-End Sports In Brief

By Associated Press

CHICAGO—John McDiarmid and Gene McCauliffe win national clay courts tennis doubles title, defeating Norman Bickel and Norbert Burgess 5—7, 6—3, 11—13, 7—5, 6—1. Rain forces postponement of singles final between Bobby Riggs and Joe Hunt.

PRINCETON, N. J.—Archie San Romani tops Don Lash in Princeton invitation mile as both are clocked in 4:07.2 seconds, fastest mile ever run. Glenn Cunningham third.

LONDON—Don Budge whips Bunny Austin 6—1, 6—2 to win Queen's Club singles tennis title and pairs with Gene Mako to take doubles. U. S. shares in women's doubles crown as Mrs. Dorothy Andrus and Mme. Sylvia Henrotin trounce Ruth Mary Hardwick and Ermyntrude Harvey.

NEWPORT—Ranger wins sixth straight race in America's Cup trials, handing Rainbow defeat by 11 minutes, 5 seconds, most decisive victory in series.

BERKELEY, Cal.—Bill Sefton pole vaults 14 feet 8 inches as Southern California retains N. C. A. A. team track and field title with [illegible] points. Stanford's [illegible] Sefton, John Woodruff with 1:50 half mile and Gregory Rice with 9:14 two mile set meet records.

NEW YORK—Sceneshifter, 7 to 10 favorite, runs third to Stacho, from Mrs. C. Oliver Iselin's stable, takes 49th running of Dwyer Stakes at Aqueduct by nose over Rudie.

JUNIOR BIRDMEN OF AMERICA

A Nationwide Organization Devoted To Amrican Youth in Aviation

By L. F. ROSS
Boston Wing Commander

In a colorful and exciting setting that will mark it as the greatest model plane tournament ever held in New England and have few rivals elsewhere, the 1937 Annual Championship Flying tournament for Junior Birdmen of the Boston American wing is virtually prepared for exhibition at Franklin Field all day Monday, June 28, a week from today.

JUNIOR BIRDMEN OF AMERICA
(Membership open to all boys and girls 10 to 21)

I wish to join the Junior Birdmen of America. I enclose a dime (well wrapped) for my gold wings and other membership materials.

PILOT WINSOR HARLOW

Radioland Reflections

By N. F. T.

FIRST of the Barrymore broadcasts, featuring John in the auspicious Shakespearean role of "Hamlet" is something of a special news note for listeners today.

John is giving himself over to have earfulls of his artistry heard by radio, following a long and colorful career of providing mostly eyefulls by way of the stage and screen.

He holds forth for the first time (WBZ) between 9:30 and 10:15 this evening, stacked up against the last half hour (WEEI) of the "Radio Theater," setting by the way. In the latter presentation Cecil B. DeMille has arranged "Monsieur Beaucaire" for [illegible] Leslie Howard, also of no [illegible] than [illegible] "Hamlet" fame, with Elissa Landi for a leading loud speaker lady and Colin Clive in the supporting cast.

"N. F. T."

RITA IN RADIO

Lovely young Rita Johnson, so recently rocketed to fame and much publicity as a result of being named as the likely Jean Harlow successor in filmdom, has been heard for the past year on the air each Friday night during the "Court of Human Relations" programs.

• • •

Noticeable of late is the failure of Bill Thompson, the talented "Fibber McGee and Molly" program dialect demon, to do his "Horatio K. Boomer" bit, decried by many to be a mere [illegible] W. C. Fields impersonation.

Now that the "Fibber" feature is in Hollywood plus the fact that Fields has so ceremoniously come into the radio picture, there is quite likely some sort of mutual agreement, although the "two short beers" and other expression by Thompson as "Horatio" never seemed to these ears as exactly steals on the Fields character style.

The thought duly prompts another thought, that of writing to Tom Fizdale, manager of the "Fibber" half hour in Hollywood, to get the low-down and of course to then set forth his explanation for your [illegible]. [illegible] promise.

OTHER OFFERINGS

Senator H. Styles Bridges of New Hampshire, will propose "A Sound Approach to Wages and Hours Legislation" when he speaks on that subject during the "National Radio Forum" setting (WBZ) this evening from 10:30 to 11:00 p. m.

The former Governor of New Hampshire holds that the objectives of the Black-Connery Wages and Hours Bill for Labor are good but that the methods provided are unsound.

• • •

On the list of [illegible] likes among air attractions as tuned in from week to week by this typewriter tapper, the limpy-voiced Jimmy Fidler and his constructive movie comment is definitely in the "likes" column—except for his slightly too whipped-creamy "And I do mean YOU" sign-off. Even so, he certainly knows his Hollywood.

• • •

Ghosts of a kidnaper, a banker, an emperor and a diver will walk in John Nesbitt's "Passing Parade" broadcast (WNAC) tonight at 7:45 p. m.

Nesbitt will introduce the rollicking hearty apparition of James Hepburn, the gallant who kidnaped a queen and subsequently talked her into marrying him, and that of Gauguin, the banker who aspired to paint pictures. He finally left his business and sailed for Tahiti, where he became a great artist.

• • •

There's to be a series of brief "Duxbury Yarns" saluting the historic old town of Duxbury, which holds its Tercentenary celebration on July 3d, 4th and 5th, beginning tomorrow (WEEI) from 6:30 to 6:35 p. m.

• • •

CONCERT COLOR

Frank Black will present a musical summer garden party during the "Contented Hour" program (WNAC) this evening at 10 o'clock, choosing themes reminiscent of moonlight, flowers and romance.

• • •

Prize-fight fans [illegible] about [illegible] would do well to listen to the Burns and Allen funfest (WNAC) tonight at 8:00 p. m.

Miss Allen has adroitly refused to pay any attention to the reports which have come from the [illegible] and has [illegible] her decision in her own way. [illegible]

GROCERS HEAR HURLEY URGE WIDER CREDIT

The time has arrived for the [illegible]

ATTACKS CHAIN STORES

In his speech Smith [illegible] chain stores. He said:

"The organized chain stores of this country have been trying to 'steal the show' by their public statements of their aid to industry and agriculture.

"Their claims were so all-inclusive, and so far-reaching, that the individual grocer would have to be considered a nonentity.

"However, the establishment of the Independent Food Distributors' Council has done a lot to offset these unreasonable claims."

NEW TAX BURDEN

Theodore Christianson, secretary-manager, in his annual report, stated that the Social Security Act had placed a new burden on the industry.

"The public should be made to know that it is the payroll tax and other levies, and increased costs due to natural economic trends, that are responsible for higher food prices."

[illegible]

"There is pending in Congress the Copeland pure food and drug bill, which takes the form of amendments of the present law. It is a good bill and should have the support of the food retailers. It has already passed the Senate.

In the House of Representatives, certain amendments have been proposed, one of them requiring grade labeling and another manufacturer's name branding.

VOICES OPPOSITION

To both these the food industry generally is opposed. They are unworkable.

[illegible]

"The producer cooperative movement is not socialistic any more than the business of the retail grocer is socialistic; they are both part of the capitalistic system.

"Our marketing cooperatives do nothing more or less than attempt to place groups of farmers on an equal footing with other organized businesses."

Maybe Vacations Make Sense, Huh?

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

Strike news from New York is always different. We got talking to a fellow picketing a lunchroom and he said, "I wish this strike was over so I could take a vacation."

When he was working he was a waiter in the lunchroom. He was picketing. Now that he was picketing the place he used to work, he ate there because it was so close to his present work, which was picketing.

It doesn't seem to make much sense. Neither does picketing. And for that matter neither does work.

Auto Makers Reveal Great Sales Growth

By B. C. FORBES

Detroit, June 21—Here is a budget of factual news I have gathered at first hand showing how the automobile industry is progressing.

B. C. Forbes

Alvan Macauley, president of the Automobile Manufacturers Association and president of Packard, tells me that last year's output of 80,699 cars represented an all-time high record; but the figures for the last six months were fully twice those for the corresponding six months a year ago. The gain, however, during the balance of the year will not be at such an extraordinary rate, Mr. Macauley declares that substantial price increases are inescapable.

General Manager Harry J. Klingler of Pontiac states that despite both protracted and temporary strikes among companies furnishing supplies the company's dealers last month delivered at retail 25,839 new cars, thereby shattering all previous Pontiac sales records for the third consecutive month. The last five months' sales reached 98,772 new cars against 74,888 the first five months of 1936, while used car sales totaled 158,655 as compared with 140,028 12 months ago.

Nearly a year ago Pontiac's quota of 1937 models was set at 185,000 cars. "Now we expect to build 236,000 and, barring abnormal interruptions, we will build them," Klingler declares.

Still more remarkable: General Sales Manager Simpson commented: "Dealers right now could sell 50 per cent more new Pontiacs if the plant could build them."

Yet only five years ago, when Klingler and Simpson, along with Chief Engineer Anibal and Plant Manager MacGregor, took hold, the company built only 47,000 cars in 12 months. Today Pontiac is the second-largest builder of G. M. cars.

Meanwhile, dealer organizations expanded from 2300 to more than 4000. Nevertheless, you are told, "in many metropolitan centers there are actually fewer Pontiac dealers now than then. Discounts were raised this year and closed territory instituted, with the result that Pontiac dealers are having the best profit year in all their history."

* * *

President Donald E. Bates, of Reo, which produces trucks and buses, reveals that last month's shipments of trucks were the best since 1929. Foreign business is particularly brisk.

* * *

From "Nick" Dreystadt, ex-bench worker who is now head of Cadillac and LaSalle, come these facts:

Retail sales by the end of April passed the record for all last year's models. Shipments by mid-July will match the total for the best annual volume in the company's 34-year history. Manufacturing schedules have had to be repeatedly stepped-up this year.

With its 1937 models, LaSalle invaded the lower medium-priced field, and the last six months has risen to fifth place among 13 makes in this class, from $1500 to $2000. This equals one car out of every four sold. In the highest-price range Cadillac's share is above the peak of 44 per cent established last year.

* * *

Hudson Motor Car Company reports a 33 per cent gain in its registrations for the first quarter of this year over last year. Current output is running at 4000 cars weekly. Commercial car shipments to date are 88 per cent above shipments for the entire 1936 season.

Retail sales of Hudsons and Terraplanes during the week ended May 29 broke all 1937 records, while output, 4187 cars, was the largest for any week this year. May retail sales jumped 45 per cent above the previous month. May shipments ran 25 per cent above 12 months ago.

Plane Deliveries At All-Time High

The first five months of 1937 were the biggest in sales deliveries in the history of American aviation, Leighton W. Rogers, president of the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce, announces in a survey, just made public.

Total deliveries of aircraft, engines and spare parts in the first five 1937 months totaled $39,524,602, against $24,477,922 in the like 1936 period, an increase of 61.1 per cent. The 1937 five months' deliveries were 50 per cent of the total 1929 production of $79,000,000.

Deliveries during May totaled $8,960,731, an all-time monthly high, against $6,296,670 in May, 1936, an increase of 42 per cent.

Crown Drug Co. Omits Dividend

Crown Drug Company has omitted its common dividend owing to impending wage and hour adjustments of employes and uncertainties occasioned by local strikes.

T. L. Evans, president, said the dividend was more than earned. Company paid two dividends of 10 cents each this year. The regular quarterly dividend of 43¾ cents on the preferred was declared payable Aug. 16 to stock of record Aug. 2.

Market Action Viewed by Haney; Outlook Improves

By LEWIS HANEY

Professor of Economics, New York University

New York, June 21—For some time it has been apparent that the chief effective weight on the stock market has been the fear of what the Committee for Industrial Organization might do to corporate earnings. That being so, it should be equally clear that relief in this respect would at least produce a rally, and might even end the intermediate decline.

In any case, this truth was established last Thursday when news that an authoritative investigation and report concerning the steel strike would be made brought a general rebound in the market.

Wall street is convinced that any impartial study will show that in this case the labor organization has gone to extremes which endanger the legal framework of our society. If such be the case, any convincing presentation of the facts may easily crystalize the widespread sentiment in favor of legislation designed to make labor organization more democratic and more responsible to society.

* * *

Last week the stock market plunged downward on Monday, to make the second of the pair of "gaps" which has become usual during the downward drift of the March-June period. Prices rallied to close well up in the day's range, however, and on Tuesday a technical rebound occurred, almost exactly as on April 27. The renewed setback on Wednesday was to have been expected. Indeed, the market held very well considering Mr. Roosevelt's remarks about written contracts with the Committee for Industrial Organization, and about redistribution of wealth. The bottom of this last dip was indicated.

Finally, on Thursday, came the news of a mediation board to seek a steel strike settlement. Added to a growing feeling that conditions had about gone the limit, it touched off a rally that otherwise would have come more gradually.

* * *

In addition to this labor factor, however, there have been a number of conditions contributing to and facilitating market weakness.

To start with, buying power has been reduced by "restricted" margin accounts, and by fully invested investment trusts. European investors have remained out. Large operators and professionals have stayed on the sidelines.

Then, about June 15, came heavy calls for taxes. Also, on July 1, the old margin basis goes out, and the new and higher margins are required of all. Probably foreign selling, particularly from France, was increased by the combination of financial troubles at home and radical labor disturbances here. Then as prices sagged, dealers who had sold "puts" hedged by selling stocks short.

Undoubtedly, the Dow theory addicts are a factor. With one eye on the "double top" of May 25 and June 4, and the other on the new low made by "the rallies," they contributed to bearish analysis.

* * *

But all the foregoing merely serve to emphasize the fact that the market may be close to having discounted the worst. My general opinion is as follows:

(1) Political conditions constitute a continuing threat to investors.

(2) There is, however, no way to escape that threat.

(3) In view of inflation, there is no better place for most people's money than in sound stocks.

(4) This fact makes it important to remember the well-tried principle that quick trading profits by speculative adroitness are not for the average man. (The average man loses at that game.)

(5) Therefore, it follows that the best course has been to hold intact one's "investments" in stocks bought for earnings and dividends. (This is the only kind of buying ever recommended in this column.)

* * *

In short, I think that during the recent "testing" of the previous low, the action of the market has been good. The prices of many stocks are certainly very reasonable. Therefore, scale-down buying of carefully appraised stocks on any further dips seems well.

The strike outlook is not so bad. The farm outlook is decidedly good. Gold continues to flow in, and the prospects of further inflation and rising commodity prices are greater than ever. Don't forget that the President's schemes all call for more money. They center in "creating purchasing power" by government borrowing and spending, thus manufacturing "currency" for higher wages, higher taxes, and higher prices!

COPPER PRODUCTION

Gain Well Above 1935 Level

Although the rate of activity at domestic copper mines, smelters and refineries in 1936 was sharply higher than in 1935, according to an advance summary issued by the Bureau of Mines, production of all three classes was less than 70 per cent of the annual average for the 1925-29 period.

The 1936 period, when compared with the previous year, showed a 58 per cent increase in mine output, a 60 per cent increase in smelter output from domestic ores and a 40 per cent increase in refinery production from domestic and foreign sources.

The report pointed out that stocks of refined copper at United States refineries registered "a notable decrease" in 1936 and at the end of the year were the smallest since 1928. They amounted to only 22 per cent of the record inventories on hand at the end of 1932. Stocks of blister copper and materials in process of refining likewise dropped in 1936.

Apparently consumption of primary copper, the bureau reported, jumped 49 per cent in 1936 over 1935 and amounted to 84 per cent of the annual average for 1925-29. However, it added:

"It is not possible to allow for consumers' stocks, which are unknown, in computing apparent consumption. Consequently, any increase in consumers' stocks during 1936 would cause a corresponding decrease in the bureau's calculation of apparent consumption."

Smelter production of primary copper from domestic sources during 1936 amounted to 1,222,819,396 pounds. Production of new refined was 1,645,000,000 pounds, domestic production of primary copper by regular refining plants 1,290,924,000 pounds, while production from imports totaled 354,053,000 pounds. Secondary production totaled 265,829,723 pounds.

Stock of copper on hand January 1, 1937, totaled 391,000,000 pounds of blister and material in process of refining and 220,000,000 of refined.

Fewer Employed In Toledo Plants

Toledo, June 21—Fifty-one major plants, mainly automotive, report 23,490 workers in the past week.

This is a loss of 70 from the preceding week, but 28 per cent over the 18,233 for a year ago.

Dividend

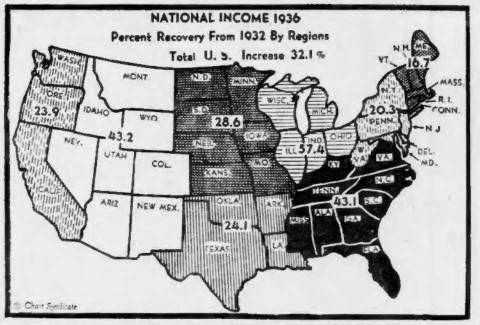
American Income Up 32 P. C. In Four Years



Income of the American people in 1936 totaled 60.5 billion dollars, according to the Brookmire Economic Service. This represents an increase of 9.6 per cent over 1935 and more than 32 per cent over 1932.

How have the various geographical regions of the country fared in recovery of national income since 1932? This chart shows the percentage gains from 1932's income to that of 1936 for the different areas.

The central manufacturing states led in the recovery, with an income gain of 57.4 per cent. The Rocky Mountain States, with their agriculture, mining and cattle raising, followed with an increase of 43.2 per cent.

The chart discloses the relatively low recovery of the industrial New England and Middle Atlantic States, compared with the high percentage of recovery of the Southern States. Formerly, the "Old South" depended almost wholly on agriculture for income. In recent years, however, the Southern States have been making a strong bid for industry, and have succeeded in attracting many new industries, particularly in the textile group, from the Northern States.

Unexpected Rise Noted in Steel Purchasing

An unexpected upturn in steel buying sufficient to bring about a falling back in deliveries in some instances featured the industry during the past week, acording to Steel.

The National operating rate pushed upward 1½ points to 75½ per cent of capacity.

TENDENCY INDEFINITE

"This is true in sheets and plates, particularly, with stiffening of demand in some other lines. While this tendency is not sufficiently marked yet to exert a strong influence on buyers, it seems to indicate a movement contrary to the expected Summer lull.

"Deliveries of sheets are further deferred than in May, in the experience of a number of producers. In plates little progress has been made by Eastern mills in reducing backlogs."

AUTO BOOKINGS

Some automobile tonnage is being booked, partly to complete 1937 lines and some for 1938 model campaigns, the review said. This tonnage is expected to increase in a short time. Railroad buying is appearing in good volume. The summary declared prospects of agricultural implement and tractor manufacturers are excellent and activity in this line will be continued through the Summer.

Pressure for tin plate is heavy. Composite price for steelworks scrap declined to $17, off 12 cents from the revised figure for the previous week. This is back to the mid-December level. The iron and steel composite is four cents at $39.80.

BUSINESS Weather Seen CLOUDED

Johnsonburg, N. J., June 21 (AP)—The seventh annual economics conference at the Stevens Institute of Technology camp was told today that extension of social control in recent years is "clouding the business weather."

Ralph E. Flanders, Vermont industrialist, said that such social changes as restraint of speculation, protection of investors, tax on undistributed profits, redistribution of wealth and fixing hours and wages "burdened small industries, choked private initiative, caused a low rate of production and led towards slow inflation."

"Weather in which private initiative is willing to venture and in which it may have a reasonable hope," he said, "will result in a bountiful harvest of expanded goods and services, more general employment and a raised standard of living."

240,703 More Get Private Jobs

Washington, June 21 (US) — The U. S. Employment Service placed 240,703 persons in private jobs in May, thus setting a new record, Secretary of Labor Perkins reported today.

At the same time the number of applicants for jobs fell to 5,039,000, the smallest number in the history of the service, she announced.

25 Years Ago

Demand for copper was so heavy that only 1,000,000 pounds of 5,000,000-pound order at 17¾ cents could be filled.

Capital for investment was reported in record volume.

May Registrations With SEC Total $238,068,000

Analysis of statements registered under the Securities Act of 1933 indicates that new securities with estimated gross proceeds of $238,068,000 became fully effective during May, 1937, the lowest monthly total since February, 1936, the Securities and Exchange Commission reports. The comparable totals for the preceding month and for the same month of 1936 are $288,076,000 and $319,319,000, respectively.

MANUFACTURING LEADS

Registrations by the manufacturing industries accounted for $155,131,000 or 65.2 per cent of the month's effective securities.

The transportation and communication industry accounted for $43,375,000 of the month's estimated gross proceeds, or 18.2 per cent, entirely through the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph debenture issue.

The electric, gas and water utility companies again registered only a small portion of the total (1 per cent).

42.8 PER CENT "NEW MONEY"

The registration indicated that they proposed to use 42.8 per cent of the net funds from the sale of their securities for "new money" purposes i. e., 23.6 per cent for plant and equipment and 19.2 per cent as additional working capital.

In addition, 33.5 per cent of the proceeds was to be used to repay indebtedness — almost all at maturity, and 13.9 per cent to retire outstanding preferred stock issues.

The large increase, recently visible in these statistics and especially marked in May, in the proportion of net funds proposed to be used as "new money" should not be interpreted as a change, consistently experienced for all types of registrants, in the purposes of financing, the commission pointed out.

Strikes Not Only Factor of Lower Market Trend

By BROADAN WALL

Universal Service

New York, June 21—Even the bulls in the stock market are counting on technical influences rather than fundamentals to steady the market or lift prices. Too much evidence has accumulated to deny a downturn in business. This downturn takes precedence over every other factor depressing prices.

Last week's railway freight report and automobile production report both showed decreased activity. Of course, the strikes are to blame. However, a government department forecast a decline through the summer months greater than seasonal. This forecast was sugar coated with an expressed hope that business will revive substantially in the autumn months.

Inability of the market to recover more than moderately last week emphasized that it was primarily concerned with the downward trend of business. Other influences such as the strikes and the foreign difficulties only accentuate the depressing influence of slower business.

Against the earlier enthusiasm over business profits, there is now a growing realization that in many lines profit margins have been badly slashed. In industries directly affected by strikes or by settlements the explanation for smaller profits is obvious. Wages have had to be increased, hours of labor have been shortened and other concessions have been made to employes.

In the industries which have suffered strikes another serious obstacle to profits has been the frequent interruption of production. Efficiency thus has been materially lessened and costs have risen. This will show in quite a few industries in quarterly reports which will be issued beginning next month.

From a technical standpoint, many professional speculators claim last week's abrupt reversal in prices was highly significant and encouraging. Such traders, however, are concerned with relatively minor price fluctuations, whereas most investors are concerned with the longer term trend.

A good deal of the supposed reserve buying power for the markets is in existence only theoretically. Investment trusts, for example, possess huge assets, but by and large they are almost fully invested. The actual percentage of cash which many investment trusts hold is very small. Indeed, many of them were just as bullish on the market earlier this year as the average speculator.

The foreign buying which was supposed to have played such a major role in the earlier boom, doesn't seem in existence today. Surely, if the foreigners were bullish on our securities at the higher prices prevailing a few months back, they should be enthusiastic about our stocks today, at the much lower prices.

Why doesn't such buying show itself? The reason is that the foreigner, just like our own average market speculator, was swept away with the existing enthusiasm, and today lacks reserve buying power. The same thing happened in "conservative" England. Prices went booming on false hopes. Last week the English stock price index was down to the lowest level of the year.

There is so much concentration today on strikes, that people lose sight of the fact that general business without the strike influence had begun to slip. One prime factor in checking business expansion was the high level reached by many commodities.

The price rise had gone so far that the President had to step in with his warning.

The purchasing power of the country was unable to absorb the high prices. Buying of new homes in many communities has almost stopped, and one of the chief reasons is the higher cost of building material and labor.

London Reacts to U. S. Strike Troubles

London, June 21 (INS)—Political troubles in France and strike troubles in America reacted in the London Stock Market today. Trading was restricted with the opening of the new account period but quotations in most sections were marked down as a precautionary measure.

The weakness of French issues featured the foreign bond lists with the 4s issue down to 14 pds. Easing bonds struck the market trend with British funds, kaffirs, coppers, diamond shares, tin issue, oils, and domestic rails all fractionally off.

Rubber shares resisted the trend and went firmer despite the fall in price of the commodity to 9⅝d. International issues and industrials were mixed.

$5 Pepperell Special Dividend

Pepperell Manufacturing Co. declared a special dividend of $5 per share, payable June 28 to stock of record June 21. This is the same amount as the special dividend paid last December.

The company has also, during the current fiscal year, to end June 30, paid two regular semi-annual dividends of $3 each.

Wall Street Briefs

New York, June 21—Aircraft and engine sales in May gained 42.3 per cent over the same month last year, a new high monthly mark, the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce reported today. Deliveries totaled $8,960,731 against $8,908,079 in April and 6,296,670 in May, 1936. Five months deliveries increased 56.6 per cent over last year from $25,175,475 to $39,435,602.

In the four weeks ended June 12, Safeway Stores, Inc., had net sales of $29,390,387 against $25,946,986 in the same period last year, a gain of 13.3 per cent, the company announced today. For the 24 weeks ended June 12 sales totaled $170,896,031 against $147,842,701 a year ago, a gain of 15.6 per cent.

Lead production in May totaled 42,000 tons compared with 46,468 tons in April and 41,551 tons in May, last year, the American Bureau of Metal Statistics reported today. Domestic shipments for May were 52,712 tons against 55,200 tons in April and 23,125 tons in May, 1936.

CONSTRUCTION

Activity Gain in June Lags

New construction activities initiated so far in June show the smallest rate of gain of any month this year. While it is still early to estimate the month's final results, well informed interests in the building industry believe the June figures, unless there is a smart spurt the next few weeks, will be less favorable than those of May when the total for the 37 eastern states of $244,112,800 represented a 13 per cent increase.

Notwithstanding the current easing off in new contracts, the industry remains confident that the year as a whole will register a substantial gain in activity over 1936. This opinion is held despite the fact that some leading interests declare it would not be surprising to see new awards fall behind a year ago in some of the coming months.

The present tapering-off in the extent of increases in new building first became perceptible during March when contracts let showed a gain of but 16 per cent as contrasted with 33 per cent in February. The April increase also was 18 per cent. For the five months ended with May, to total was 17 per cent higher than in the similar period of 1936, advancing to $1,176,377,200 as compared with $1,004,676,100 a year ago, according to the F. W. Dodge Corp.

The slackening of activity is largely attributable to advancing costs, the shaking of public confidence reflecting the continued spread of labor unrest and the trend of security values toward lower levels.

Costs have been continually on the upgrade for some time, but especially sharp advances have been registered since the beginning of the year. These advances have in major part been due to the continual stiffening in demands of labor for shorter hours and increased wages.

Numerous instances are being reported of prospective builders deferring placing of contracts because of uncertainty engendered by the widespread strikes.

Newton Steel Auction Delay

Monroe, Mich., June 21 — Sheriff's sale of the Newton Steel Co. plants here has been postponed until August 24. The sale had been scheduled for June 22.

The action is thought to be due to present labor troubles.

Markets Watch Labor

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

With news pages carrying word of a threatened general strike it is only natural that the markets are watching and wondering just how much more labor will demand before current unrest is succeeded by a period of quiet. The end, regardless of the outcome of the steel strike, does not seem to be in sight.

Most observers are swinging around to the views that the activity of the CIO in steel is simply one of a series of steps and that when a reasonable settlement is reached new disputes will break out in other directions. Certainly those who oppose such a line of thought will find much supporting it in this week's Washington letters. And they should study the situation from the Washington angle before jumping to the conclusion that the strike wave will end with steel. As we see it the principal ray of light emanates from the fact that when the steel strike is settled the two giants of American industry—motors and steels—will have cleaned up most of their labor questions. And then if many smaller strikes take place the effect on our general economy will not be so disrupting and neither will the news dispatches be so chilling to sentiment.

• • •

Some months ago the writer called attention to some of the imponderables in the profit outlook. Rising costs of raw materials as well as rapid increases in wages were pointed to as sufficient in themselves to call for the market setback which developed. Now it is to be noted that earnings estimates in many directions are undergoing downward revisions. While business forecasters generally continue to feel that the actual physical volume of trade will show gains they are not so sure of corresponding gains in profit margins. In fact, a goodly number say some industries may find that from now on profits will run behind the return of a year ago.

• • •

All this makes another difficult situation for those concerned with the outlook for the markets. And it applies equally to private investor and professional advisor. Great care in choosing the proper stocks and bonds must be exercised if "dead situations," to say nothing of losses, are to be avoided.

• • •

The near term outlook for the market probably can be disconnected from other considerations and handled on a purely technical basis. Thus if prices in general find it possible to cling within the range just above recent lows, regardless of the news, it will be possible to anticipate a good rally in the list as a whole. But if a smart upturn does take place readers are urged to go over their holdings with a fine tooth comb and eliminate all uncertain profit situations. And the funds thus freed should not be put to work immediately. Rather should they be held for use on a following dip.

• • •

As matters now stand one of the most advanced groups appears to be electrical equipments. It is worth noting that Westinghouse in particular has made what appears to be a good base. Thus a stock which started to tumble in advance of the market as a whole and on fears of the profit sharing plan with workers, is making a bottom on the probability profit and labor developments have been taken into account.

• • •

Notebook: The current outlook for Western Union is an ideal case in point insofar as all the foregoing is concerned . . . Using the earnings for April as a guide per share income for 1937 might be set at $3.20 . . . May is thought to have been slightly better . . . But the rate cut as of June 1, combined with smaller business, might well result in a deficit for June . . . The actual report for the month will be available about August 10 . . . Now if the annual employes' convention now in session in Portland, Ore., results in a demand for a substantial wage increase the company's outlook will be most unprepossessing . . . In fact, many observers will expect a deficit for the full year 1937.

STEEL Shares FIRM

MARKET TONE IMPROVES

New York, June 21—The stock market developed a better tone today after early weakness, prices moving irregularly higher. First hour unsettlement reflected developments in the steel strike situation and resignation of the Blum government.

Steels moved up after showing losses to nearly a point at the start. U. S. Steel rose around a point and Republic almost as much, while Bethlehem and Youngstown were firm.

Chrysler erased a loss of over a point and went fractionally higher. General Motors moved up slightly.

Rails cut down declines running to two points. Oils were fractionally lower as a rule.

Communications were firm. Mail order and mining shares were easy. Rubbers recovered most losses. Amusement and building shares were steady.

Grains were buoyant. Cotton was higher. Bonds were irregularly lower.

CURRENT ITEMS

Comment in the financial community centered on the continued steel strikes. Observers said the strikes against four major independent steel makers had resulted in further diversion of orders to plants not affected by labor disputes.

This, trade circles said, was resulting in a proportionately larger share of new business for some of the industry's smaller organizations. Meanwhile, some disappointment was expressed in trading quarters over the earnings trend for May indicated by early reporting railroad systems.

One compilation, based on the first eight roads to report, showed May operating income down 12.1 per cent from the like 1936 month.

While it was stressed these reports would not necessarily be duplicated by roads reporting later, analysts said they bore witness to higher operating expenses throughout the industry.

The French franc opened off .00¼ of a cent at 4.45¾ cents. The pound sterling was up 1-16 of a cent at $4.94 1-16.

Man Labor Cost in April Up From 1929 Average

Labor cost per man-hour in April this year was 17.7 per cent above the 1929 level, according to an analysis by the national industrial conference board.

The study disclosed an increase of 27.6 per cent in output per man-hour, largely as a consequence of mechanization and improved methods of operation.

Compared with the average for 1936, the board reported an increase in April of 10.7 per cent in labor cost per man-hour, an increase of 7.7 per cent in labor cost per unit of product and a relatively slight increase in labor cost per $100 of output.

Steel Operations At 75.9 P. C. of Capacity

New York, June 21 (AP)—Operations in the steel industry for the current week declined .7 of a point to 75.9 per cent of capacity, compared with 76.6 per cent last week, the American Iron & Steel Institute estimated today.

A month ago operations averaged 91 per cent of capacity, while a year ago the rate was 70.2 per cent.

Retail Display Advertising Up

Chicago, June 21—Retail display advertising for this year through June 5, is 26,582,698 lines, or 6.2 per cent ahead of the comparable period of last year, Advertising Age, national advertising newspaper, reports.

Totals for the 78 major cities used in tabulating this index show 457,979,670 lines for this year, against 431,396,982 lines for the comparable period of 1936. At this time last year, 1936 showed a gain of 3.7 per cent over 1935.

Nickel Sets New Monthly Record

Ottawa, Ont., June 21 (AP)—A new high monthly record was established in production of nickel during April with an output of 21,266,884 pounds, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

In April, 1936, the output totalled 11,018,947 pounds. Copper produced in April was 41,989,288 pounds compared with 35,491,618 in April, 1936.

Comments of Brokers

Since the market action of the rails turned comparatively bad many analysts have been warning against them, but on generalities rather than concrete figures in most cases.—G. M.-P. Murphy and Company.

Fundamentally, the outlook is considered bright for retail trade and petroleum stocks.—H. D. Comer, Paine, Webber and Company.

We would venture the prediction that over the near term there will be an increasing willingness to appraise and to interpret individual stock situations and we are inclined to believe that the market in so far as the industrial stocks are concerned will show more strength than weakness.—E. A. Pierce and Company.

We believe the market during the next week will continue under the influence of labor developments. Judging by past experiences, it would seem reasonable to expect a series of alternately favorable and unfavorable news developments until the steel strike is finally settled.—Berry Grant, Hornblower and Weeks.

The principals to the steel labor controversy continue to voice an unyielding attitude in respect to the signing of written agreements. At this stage nothing else was to have been expected but pressure for settlement, under auspices of Federal Steel Mediation Board, is undoubtedly growing. It seems likely that stock market will tend to anticipate such settlement so that gradual further recovery of the ground recently lost appears in prospect.—J. S. Bache & Co.

Until there is definite break in the labor battle, however, nothing more than spasmodic rallies are likely to interrupt the irregular downward trend.—J. P. Maher, Shields & Co.

CHANGE in Market POLICY

ROOT CASE IS STUDIED

By LESLIE GOULD

International News Service Financial Writer

New York, June 21—The "short cut" taken by the Securities and Exchange Commission in settling the Root petroleum manipulation case marks a significant new turn in the policing of the securities markets. Two of the largest stock exchange firms and two partners in each house were involved in the case, which concerned dealings in a cheap curb stock.

Under the settlement made "out of court"—The SEC dropped the charges against the two firms and the partners involved, and in return the four partners agreed to "exile" themselves from the securities busines.

One of the partners agreed to a two-year "exile," while the others signed one year stipulations. In these periods, the partners have agreed not to apply for registration as a broker or dealer, or an official or partner of a registered firm. In addition the three who hold memberships on Chicago and New York exchanges agreed not to apply for membership of any exchanges.

DENY GUILT

The partners in agreeing to "voluntary exile" denied any guilt in connection with trading in the suspected stock.

Everybody, except the four partners, seemed happy over this speedy solution of the case. The charges were filed on May 22nd, and here the case is all washed up in less than a month. This is something of a record for most of these SEC manipulation cases have dragged through a year and more. The case involving Michael J. Meehan, the one time big shot operator on the stock exchange, has extended over more than two years and a decision has yet to be handed down.

The SEC gained its point. All it could do, in the event of a hearing found those accused guilty, would be to suspend or expel the firms and their partners, or just the four partners if they were found guilty alone and the firms only negligent. The partners have agreed to suspension and the firms have learned a little lesson.

The two stock exchange firms have had a cloud lifted from their business and have saved themselves the expense and adverse publicity of long hearings before the commission. They actually have been cleared of any firm wrong-doing.

The SEC is to be congratulated on adopting this method of settling cases of this kind. It shows the proper co-operative spirit and a willingness to do the right thing and with the minimum of shock to the business.

The trouble up to now has been the length of time it has taken the SEC to bring about a decision in such cases. Now that criticism can no longer be levelled against the commission. In fact it seems to have gone ahead of the stock exchange in such matters.

Seeks Corporate Reorganization Legislation

Washington, June 21 (INS)—The SEC today asked Congress to enact legislation to eliminate conditions prevailing in corporate reorganizations which permit persons with conflicting interests to act as the representatives of security holders.

Specifically, the commission recommended that corporate managements and investment bankers should no longer be permitted to exercise a dominant and controlling influence over the activities of protective committees.

"The conflicts of interests," the SEC reported, "which have marked their activities in reorganizations makes it necessary to relegate management and bankers to a subservient role in the reorganization process."

Legislative attention also should be directed for the elimination of adverse interest on the part of lawyers the commission continued.

"Though conflicting interests have long characterized the activities of lawyers who represent committees and security holders in re-organizations, little attention has hitherto been given to this abuse," the report added. "No program for reform of existing re-organization practices will be complete unless steps are taken to insure to investors representation by counsel who have no conflicting loyalties or interests."

Nat'l Bellas Hess Withdraws Issue

National Bellas Hess Inc., has withdrawn its registration statement filed with the Securities & Exchange Commission covering its amended proposed offering of 81,120 shares of 6 per cent convertible preferred to common stockholders.

Business Holding Steady

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

Copyright, 1937, by Universal Service

New York, June 21—General business is holding steady at prevailing levels, which, though only a shade above the lowest plateau for 1937, represents an overall gain of nearly 4 per cent over the corresponding period a year ago.

Current statistics must be corrected, too, to allow for the artificial letdown resulting from strikes in steel companies. The depressing effect is not limited only to the employes, but spreads also to every one who deals with them. Indicative of the interdependence of the groups is the fact that concern has already been expressed that there may be, as a result of the strike, a shortage of tin plate, used for cans.

Former Senator Gore of Oklahoma has pointed out that a true statesman perceives not only the immediate effects of a proposed policy but also the secondary effects. Thus, while the CIO and the NLRB and other pro-labor agencies are apparently seeking to help workers, they, plus the payroll taxes, have tended to promote the demand for "iron slaves"—machines—as a partial substitute for manpower. Accordingly, in the first five months of the year new orders for machine tools showed an increase of 86 per cent over a year ago.

• • •

Business is perpetually in process of adapting itself to a changing environment. For example, the rules of the S. E. C., designed to protect investors, entail the filing of an expensive prospectus which as added to the cost of new financing. In addition, personal liabilities are incurred by officers and directors. Accordingly, business concerns, in purchasing tools and other capital goods, which formerly may have been financed by stock and bond issues, are in not a few instances finding alternative ways of borrowing capital. Instalment sales finance companies are privately making advances to industrial concerns to enable them to pay for machinery out of income over a period of years.

• • •

This writer has pointed out that mutual life insurance companies are not "big business" in the sense of corporations operated for profit, but are cooperative savings institutions for large numbers of individuals, mostly of modest means. Accordingly, the executives of such insurance companies, as trustees for the savings of the people, should set up for themselves higher standards of candor than prevail at the marketplace where "let the buyer beware" codes may still operate.

From this standpoint, it seems to me that there has been less than frankness in notifying policy-holders of a change in policy in respect to relatively reducing dividends on policies containing total and permanent disability provisions. One large company states that the change has been made with the approval of the New York State Insurance Department, and is in accord with a recent decision by the court of appeals.

"As many policyholders use their dividends each year towards payment of premiums, and as the net cost (premium less dividend) is of moment to many policyholders, attention is called to the provision in the policy entitling the policyholder, at his option to discontinue the disability provisions. The advantages of so terminating these provisions are (1) a reduction in the premiums, and (2) the payment in future of the same dividends as on other similar policies without these provisions. The disadvantage is the loss of the disability protection."

• • •

It seems to me that, from SEC standards from which the insurance companies are technically exempt, there is a material omission in the foregoing notice to policyholders. For there is no indication that such disability provisions are no longer written on such a favorable basis, and are substantially irreplacable. Accordingly, in relinquishing them, policyholders give up a form of protection against incapacity which they cannot restore later at their option.

The explanation lies in the fact that such total and permanent disability clauses have not worked out well from the companies standpoint. Yet they are bound by contractual relations with old policyholders, and should not be permitted to slip out of them through pulling the wool over the eyes of uninformed policyholders. Why does not the New York State Insurance Department insist on a full disclosure?

Wall Street Hears

New York, June 21 (INS)—That earnings of International Business Machines (IBM) for the first half will exceed $5.60 a share, against $5.19 a year ago.

That with earnings running at a $4 annual rate Borg Warner (BOR) will declare an extra dividend before the year-end.

Making America Safe

THE AWARD of contracts by the United States Army for 177 bombing planes is described in a Unversal Service dispatch as:

It is a first step and a short step, but a step forward.

America is now in sixth position among the air powers.

The Army contracts are encouraging, in the evidence they afford that we have BEGUN to come up.

These new planes will INCREASE THE SECURITY of America.

They materially lessen the prospect that any foreign power will ever RISK war with America.

No nation will WANT war with us unless it can whip us, and these 177 planes, and those that are proposed and projected will give any attacker cause to pause.

Secretary of War Woodring knows we need STILL MORE PLANES.

This is a policy of building for the PROTECTION of America and it is a credit to the wisdom of our national leaders RESPONSIBLE FOR OUR DEFENSE.

Advice for Young Teachers

P. A. O'CONNELL, prominent Bostonian, gave good advice to graduates of the Salem Teachers' College.

"If you cannot find a teaching position," he told them, "turn your attention to the needs in other fields which now present innumerable opportunities to well-trained young women."

We have a surplus of teachers. There is no doubt about that. Commissioner of Education Reardon says so. And practically every school committee agrees.

Eventually, because of deaths, marriages and retirements, the surplus will be reduced and positions made available for the now unemployed.

In the meantime, however, nothing will be accomplished by a graduate's adopting a policy of patient waiting. It will be better for mind and pocketbook to take a job in business or industry.

A 'Billy' Connery Memorial

HIS thousands of friends will agree, a fitting monument to the work and achievements of the late Congressman Connery should be erected in Massachusetts.

Francis X. Cotter of South Boston, past State Commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, suggests that if a United States Veterans' Hospital is established in Boston, it should bear the Congressman's name.

Numerous other suggestions have been made by former soldiers and labor leaders. Most of them are good. At least, all should be considered and the best adopted.

"Billy" Connery's real memorial was his staunch devotion to those who fought to save this country and to those who work to make it better. That memorial is already in History's Hall of Fame.

The other memorial, of bronze and marble, should be an eternal symbol of our love and gratitude.

A Never-Ending Story

THERE is a mandate for careful driving in the latest statistics announced by Registrar Frank A. Goodwin.

If there are 61,891 MORE cars on the roads, the individual's chances of being hit may be 61,891 times greater.

If there are 13,080 NEW drivers moving about, there are 13,080 additional reasons for exercising extreme caution.

More automobiles mean more risks. There is no getting away from that. Like perpetual motion, the highway problem is a never-ending story.

Jean Harlow and Sunburn

JEAN HARLOW'S death was caused by severe sunburn suffered more than a year ago.

That is the belief of Scientist Henry M. Busch of Cleveland College.

He finds that the scar tissue resulting from the burn prevented the proper function of the skin pores and undermined the health of the motion picture star.

This is a scientific discussion that ought to interest everyone, bathers and suntan enthusiasts especially.

Sun baths are desirable. They are insurance against disease. But, like many medicines, the applications should be gradual—a little at a time.

Sir James M. Barrie

Sir James M. Barrie, playwright and novelist, is dead in England, and the world mourns.

But Sir James' work isn't dead. His immortal Peter Pan is alive. As long as there are men and smiles he will live, that little boy who wouldn't grow up.

Few of us ever saw Sir James. Yet we feel that we must have known him. He lifted us so often out of the drab everyday into the happy land of fantasy.

Let us hope that even now his laughing, carefree spirit has found a permanent abode in that pleasant sphere.

The Somerville Film Ban

SOMERVILLE has banned three motion pictures because Mayor Knox and City Censor Bullock consider them to be Communistic and radical.

The Mayor announces that he will not permit screens in his city's theaters to be used for Red appeals and unAmerican propaganda.

Public opinion will support him, for in Somerville, as everywhere in this country, the people are in revolt against the use of the theater as a means of getting subversive propaganda into the minds of our citizens, particularly our young people.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

O. O. McIntyre

New York, June 21—In the manner of Arnold Bennett's journal: An English friend writes me seeing Colonel Lindbergh walking slowly, head down, through a forest near his countryside home "a forlorn figure of inarticulate grief." It's his belief the crushing tragedy has made the Lindberghs permanent exiles.

M. and I drove about the great Pocantico Hills, home of the elder Rockefeller, the other sundown. Death somehow always intensifies the beauty of such estates. There was an odd calm and every bluff and pinnacle seemed starkly and affectionately silhouetted against the lemon sky.

Perhaps it was the visual enchantment as we stopped at one peak to gaze down upon the Hudson ruffed into a silvery glisten but the birds' evening songs seemed especially clear and lyrical. As though to carol a hope and a message all was well. Pleasant twilight musing anyway.

Because of motor difficulty we stopped beyond Tarrytown near the trailer home of a gypsy caravan. Two swarthy crones with rings in their ears, adder eyes and incredibly filthy, slouched over with a greasy pack of cards. We shook our heads, waved them away and they cursed us with a magnificence Mark Twain would have loved.

How much we miss of little emotional raptures by clinging to the steel and asphalt of the city. I was telling V. V. McNitt that no musical event I ever heard—and that goes for the several highly bespoken symphonic offerings—have the real wallop of the robins' choir as night grays into the splendor of a morning pink.

Outside of sporting a monocle to the manner born, no sartorial doo-dad excites my ambition like wearing a white satin lined Inverness, with one corner of the cape flung over the shoulder just so! The only Invernesses I ever saw worn by Americans were on Phil Simms when he was a dramatic critic in Cincinnati and Dudley Field Malone arriving nobly at Ciro's in Paris one night.

I'm not the Inverness type. Few are. The only acceptable Inverness candidates that pop into mind at the moment are Tony Biddle, Prince Andrew of Greece and Ben Ali Hagin.

Too, I've wished some stylist would touch off a muffler craze and do away with collars and ties. Not many gadgets look so jaunty as an expertly knotted muffler. And they can be worn every season of the year by a selection of light, medium and heavy materials. William Faversham was really the first mufflerist.

Leslie Howard flings a mean muffler, so do Warren William and Harry Bannister.

But the most accomplished of all is the British comedian Seymour Hicks. He gives it pomp, panache and punch.

This about a muffler: Take the sorriest Bowery bum, shave him, cut his hair and swath his neck in a decent muffler and he will appear astonishingly duded up.

Two deluxe cat shops, mirrored and chromiumed to a glitter, were opened and shuttered within a month recently. Cats are difficult to handle in the confines of a small shop. They need big yards for roaming and high fences for cat walks, otherwise they sicken and die. The most successful cat dealers are those who rear cats for sheer love of it in private homes in the suburbs.

On his way to California several weeks ago Will H. Hays had his son Bill, who had just been graduated from Wabash, meet him in Chicago for a dinner and theater celebration together. Next morning, as they were walking Michigan avenue, the elder Hays stopped before a new roadster drawing up at the curb. He noticed that the initials on the door were the same as his son's—W. H. H., Jr.

By that time The Great Light had broken over the boy. He realized it was a "plant," his father's way of surprising him with a graduation gift. Every young man should have one of these surprises in his life. It is difficult to recall them in later years without a throat twitch.

Mine was on a lesser scale—a muckle dun pony hitched to the rack in front of my father's hotel on a birthday morning. No matter if, spurred beyond a slow walk, the pinto suffered from what is known in veterinarian vernacular as "the heaves"—a breathing malady suggesting sour notes from a tuba—it was one of the most memorable events of life. A real pony!

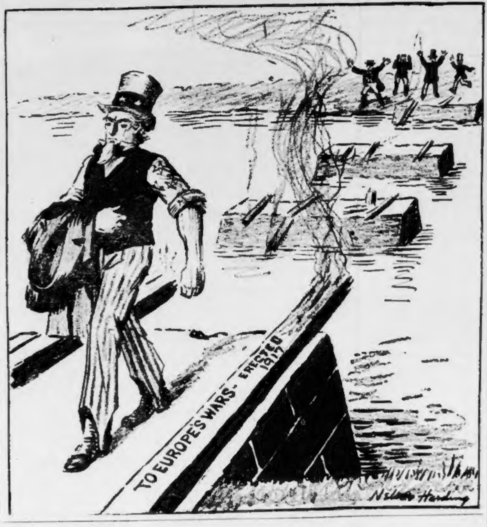
We've Burned Our Bridges Behind Us

By Nelson Harding



Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

Or is there something to be said on the other side?

Elsie Robinson

Herman—who ought to know—lustily says there is. And proceeds to give some data that will, if we know our female nature, make him a poor insurance risk for any company!

"Dear Miss Robinson:

"I am only an unimportant male clerk, but I am convinced that most stenographers consider the office as the place to get themselves a husband. If this is not so, then why all the powder, lipstick and hurried last minute inspection in a mirror before answering a call to take dictation?

"For whose benefit the too sheer hose, the arousing appeal of expensive perfume, the flattering frocks as impractical as a debutante's? Why the hip-swinging, provocative stride of a 'strip tease' queen . . . the form-fitting, curve-revealing cut of an expensive dress better fitted for a ball room than an office?

"The modern stenographers flaunt their appeal in the face of their boss, flatter his vanity by a steady diet of praise, 'yes' him to death; and if, finally, the nearness and appeal of their youthful charms drive the poor man to distraction and start putting ideas into his head, they 'cannot understand why the boss is always trying to admire them every chance to gets.'

"No, you can't make me believe modern girls dress to attractively to improve the office scenery, or give the drug store a treat while grabbing that lunch of 'cake and sandwich.' The office is a hunting ground, where the modern girl goes to get her man.

"Herman F. Kissel (23)
Columbus, Ohio."

Brave words, Herman, and they make you a winner of a $10 prize. But if you haven't already provided a storm cellar for yourself, you'd better do so.

HERE'S CONSOLATION!

Still here's a Tillie the Toiler who says you're 100 per cent correct—so that should console you in your hideout. Presenting Margaret Hamilton, with a timely upper-cut.

"Dear Miss Robinson:

"Having worked in various lines, such as clerical work, motion picture printer, sales-girl and finally as soda-fountain clerk, I feel I have come in contact with enough variety of bosses to form a pretty fair opinion of them.

"Why not give credit where credit is due? There are no doubt bosses such as Miss Lambecht wrote you about, and then there are those who value the reputation of their firms and families too much to start scandal.

"If girls would only use a little common sense and tact, instead of pretending they'll be fired if they resist the boss' attentions, I am sure they would soon gain his respect and admiration. But some girls like to spread the impression that they are just too sweet to be resisted!

"Please don't misunderstand my point of view and think that I am defending the 'too familiar' employer. A girl should use both caution and common sense, and get over the idea that she's irresistible.

"Margaret Hamilton (28),

However—just so some of the gals can still Hope for the Worst—here's DOROTHY FRANKLIN with a Dark and Dreadful Picture. S'funny how some girls have all the luck! Here I've spent most of a century with this boss and that—and I've never had to vault a desk yet.

CAN'T BELIEVE IT

But perhaps they didn't Prefer Blondies. Meaning what? Meaning, Dorothy, that I'm giving you and your romantic ideas the razz. For I still don't believe that the average American office is a Den of Iniquity.

"Dear Elsie Robinson:

"Some of the teen age girls have justifiably complained of the unscrupulousness of their employers. I knew a girl who had a terrible experience with one of those super-monsters, those arch-fiends, those Draculas who prey on a young girl's fear of her job.

"Well, the climax came when that boorish Frankenstein tried to kiss her—and she broke away. She got to the other side of the desk. She was crying, both with fear of losing her job and at the disgusting humiliation of the whole scene.

"Just then the door opened and who should walk in but the boss' wife! Say, she told him everything that the girl wished she could tell hm, had she dared.

"He took it all, the big coward, and from then on he left her alone. For many days he seemed puzzled, as if wondering why his wife appeared just when she did. I suppose he thought someone had tattled—and he was right. The girl did!

"Chicago, Ill."

RULES

1—The writer of a letter in competition for one of the three weekly prizes—two of $10 each and one of $5—must be under 30 years of age.

2—The letter must be upon some subject of importance to American Youth.

3—The letter must not exceed 500 words in length.

4—The writer must give his or her age and full name and address, and the name of each writer awarded a prize will be published.

5—To be eligible for the prize awarded each week, a letter must bear postmark not later than noon of the preceding Saturday.

That's That

By Bruce Gustin

President Roosevelt talks about increasing the national income by spreading a greater part of the country's wealth among the ill-nourished, ill-clad and ill-housed one-third.

No one will quarrel with that objective. But there is a wide difference of opinion about how it can be attained.

However, all must agree there is no more practicable way of increasing the national income and creating more wealth for division than by giving people who want to work and can get jobs a chance to hold these jobs.

The industry of employed people creates national income. Industrial warfare, forcing idleness upon tens of thousands who want to work at jobs which are waiting for them doesn't produce any wealth to be divided.

The people of Georgia, by a majority of more than 8000, voted to continue prohibition. Citizens of Augusta voted for repeal of prohibition by a margin of more than five to one.

The director of the Augusta Police Department is quoted as saying licensed whiskey will be sold there "as long as I have anything to do with it."

His argument is there's going to be liquor. The question is: Will it be legal liquor or bootleg liquor?

The situation in Georgia is another demonstration of the difficulty of settling the liquor problem at the polls. And it is identical with the situation which prevailed over a large part of the United States during Prohibition.

Where public sentiment was wet, dry laws were ignored. Local option, which enables each community to determine its own policy, seems to be the best method of dealing with the problem.

There certainly is no love lost between the rulers of Russia and Germany. Replying to Soviet charges that eight Russian generals executed for treason had been engaged in espionage for Germany, the official Nazi news agency declared: "No lie of Soviet propoganda has been so stupid, ridiculous and contradictory as this." And then the Nazi spokesman branded Dictator Stalin of Russia and the slain generals as "equally despicable representatives of the same objectionable system."

The vituperation and abuse which characterize exchanges between Germany and Russia are quite a departure from diplomatic usage. Nations, until they are actually at war, do not usually display their hatred of each other in such a frank manner.

If there is anything in the theory that "barking dogs do not bite," Russia and Germany will be able to let off steam for quite a while by freely abusing each other without openly engaging in war.

Al Smith, in his first public speech in Europe, told the American Club in Paris:

"After what I have seen of Europe, don't let anybody make a mistake about our form of government. IT IS THE BEST."

Lady Astor, England's first woman member of Parliament, said on her arrival in New York on an American visit:

These opinions of Al Smith and Lady Astor are recommended to those who may be wondering if Fascism, Communism, State Socialism and other political isms of Europe offer any improvement over our American system of government.

Administration views upon publicity seem to depend upon whose ox is likely to be gored. Congressional leaders, after a conference with the President, decided to make public the names of alleged wealthy tax dodgers.

There is no proof that they have violated the law. They just haven't paid as much in taxes as the taxeaters think they should have paid.

Turning the spotlight on them may encourage class hatred, and that is supposed to be good propaganda for the administration.

Recently, Senator Holt of West Virginia asked the WPA administration for a list of the names, addresses and salaries of persons holding supervisory or administrative jobs in the WPA in his state. That was denied him on the grounds that "the public could have no legitimate interest in such information and its release would very possibly result in these persons being subjected to solicitation from salesmen and the gossip of neighbors."

Taxpayers and taxeaters merit no more favors than tax evaders. But if, as Senator Holt charges, Raymond Lewis—a brother of John L. Lewis, the CIO leader—is on the WPA payroll in West Virginia as an engineer, administration objection to making that payroll public can be understood.

The One-Child Family

The Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

If you have just one daughter, you may be able to send her to a good finishing school. That will help her to get a husband, but being an only child will make it harder to hold that husband.

Edwin C. Hill

So says Dr. George W. Crane, of Northwestern University, reporting his study of more than 5000 divorced men and women. The only child has the smallest chance for a successful marriage, is Dr. Crane's conclusion. The "middle" child, he finds, is the best matrimonial risk.

Progressive educators have been worried about the single child for many years. Children of a large family restrain, discipline and tame each other. Sharing, quarreling, competing, they engage in a rehearsal for life denied the lone child.

Maladjusted children, problem children, are apt to be those without brothers or sisters. They also are apt to be the children of broken homes.

EXPERT OPINION

Within the last year there have been published, here and in England, four or five authoritative books, giving a startling account of the falling birth rate. These writers deduce alarming social ills from the increasing prevalence of the one-child or no-child family.

Dr. Crane breaks new ground only in examining the problem in its relation to the stability of marriage. Several of the above books assign to big cities the biological frustration and thwarting which they deplore.

One knows what they mean when one considers the rent of a New York apartment big enough, light and airy enough to house, say, a family of five, with possibly a garden or a yard for the children to play in. Inevitably, parents in the small fixed income bracket living in a two-room or three-room apartment, will limit their family.

There is abundant evidence that it is urban living which is lowering the birth rate. It is not only space limitation, but is the constant lure and stimulus of our "bagmen's delights," as Taine called city living. You want to dance and dine, to catch the quick-step of city life, and you don't want any youngsters hanging onto your coat-tails or your shirts.

CAN'T FACE LIFE

Washington tries to devise a new kind, in the wide synthesis of conscious effort by which we try to undo the ills which follow when we poke our fingers into the wheels of life. That lets in the economists, along with the geneticists and educators. In essence, Dr. Crane's finding is that the only child can't "take it." There's a lot of give-and-take needed for a successful marriage.

Four or five youngsters on even terms in a home, bullying and being bullied, oppressors and oppressed, winners and short-enders, favorites and also rans, get a grand work-out for the main event—which isn't so different.

They learn to suffer ridicule, to take a punch and deliver one in return, to bounce back after defeat and to have imposed on them a salutary restraint to their bounding egos. That goes for life training, of course, and possibly even more so for marriage, if one widens the home curruculum to include a touch of chivalry and sportsmanship, which it does in any home worth the name.

The progressive schools of today are marvelous laboratories for Dr. Crane's inquiry, as their children are very apt to be only children. It's simple. If you have one child, you can afford to send it to a progressive school; if you have two, perhaps you can't.

For this reason, distinguished progressive educators, like Dr. Carleton Washburne, of Winnetka, Ill., and Carolyn Pratt, of New York City, have been keenly alive to the problem of the only child, and both have added much to studies in this field.

Miss Pratt mixes the youngsters up in a general rough-and-tumble pretty much like the careless free-for-all in a big family—boys and girls together. "Learn to take it," has been the shining motto of her school. Girls mix in the ball games and even rougher sports, and neither boys nor girls get much sympathy from a spill or a black eye.

The theory of this school is that children in their natural free mingling learn and thrive by educating each other, rather than by having education thrust down their throat. Teachers are kept much in the background.

NO COMPROMISE

Since the old abounding family life is gone, Miss Pratt, Dr. Washburne and others see in such intermingled work and play activities, on a more or less stand-up-and-knock-down basis, the only substitute for the wholesome milling around in big families. Educators revive the once discounted "recapitulation theory."

The idea is that an individual child, growing from infancy, repeats the social stages of the development of mankind—the lone wolf, the hunter, the clansman, the trader and so on to the higher creative and co-operative stages of the race. He makes a much more orderly progress through all these stages if he is one of a large family group.

We seem to find no half-way house when we start on the road to managed economy. It may be the same with managed biology.

On the Nail

By Benjamin DeCasseres

Which are the 12 politest nations in the world? Without a doubt they are the 12 nations that were due to pay us $1,300,000,000 on June 15 on the international debt but who sent us the most polished what-are-you-going-to-do-about-it notes that ever emanated even from the brain of Lord Chesterfield, who could curry-comb a porcupine with fine words.

The English and French notes of polite refusal to lay anything on the barrel-head were almost scented.

There is a story told of the Duke de Biron which will illustrate this engaging politesse of the Old World when it is in a jam.

The duke was in prison in 1793 because he had disobeyed army orders. A messenger had to break the distressing news to him that he was to be guillotined immediately. The duke was having a deluxe breakfast, but when he heard the news he rose, bowed and said:

The 12 politest nations of the world are also having a de luxe meal off the American taxpayer—and the pearl in their oysters is a $12,000,000,000 one!

"To achieve the brotherhood of man they (the Communists) shoot generals. It is all supposed to be love, but you don't shoot for love. It's gangster rule," says Lady Astor.

Lady Astor visited Soviet Russia some years ago with George Bernard Shaw. They showed her Russia from a carefully routed Pullman window. Now she sees it as it is—from THE OPEN WINDOW OF HER MIND.

The Irish-American Historical Society, under the presidency of James McGurrin, celebrated the other day the 200th anniversary of the birth of an Irish-American whose name has almost been forgotten—Christopher Colles, who settled in New York in 1765.

Colles was the father of the Erie Canal, that great engineering marvel, 349 miles long, that connects the Hudson river at Albany with Lake Erie at Buffalo.

Human nature is so perversely constituted that it uses to its great advantage all the benefits of our civilization, but seldom stops to lift the glass of memory as a toast of gratefulness to those men who spent their lives, and quite often their fortunes, giving us these benefits.

All languages, like all peoples, are made up of "foreign" elements. There is no such thing as a "pure language."

All languages and all ideas are melting pots. We borrow and make over EVERYTHING.
